

First Meet Your Candidates Night in Romulus attracts healthy turnout

Some 210 interested Romulus citizens turned out Thursday night for the first Meet Your Candidates Night which was co-sponsored by Associated Newspapers and "We the People," a local citizens group. Standing at the podium is Dennis G. Fassett, ANP managing editor, who served as moderator for the total of 30 candidates seeking office in this year's city election. The size of the crowd surprised many local political observers, who in past years were treated to small tightly-knit factions each battling the other to obtain votes for their candidates. The event proved popular with the audience because of the fair and impartial treatment of all candidates in their turn at the microphone in answering questions from the audience and in giving prepared remarks. ANP and "We the People" received comments of appreciation from many in the audience following the four and a half hour public service gesture of both groups to acquaint the voters of Romulus with information enabling them to make a more honest appraisal at the polls in the Sept. 12 primary and the Nov. 8 general election. Both groups are hopeful of repeating the candidate night format two years from now.

In Brief...

Tim Wood first in skateboard

The Romulus Recreation Department sponsored its second annual skateboard contest at Romulus City Hall last week and Tim Wood, 16, (above) swept to first place finishes in downhill slalom, obstacle course and freestyle.

Bill Streety, also 16, proved to be his closest competitor by taking second in both downhill slalom and obstacle and third in freestyle.

Steve Medina, 14, gave Streety a close run, coming up second in freestyle and third in downhill slalom. Craig Nickel, 11, nabbed third in obstacle and fourth in slalom.

Kevin Britz, 12, and Ed Groves, 12, each took a fourth place, in obstacle and freestyle, respectively.

In other action, the 10-and-under age group was led by 10-year-old Monica Block, who finished first in the slalom and Joyce Dunlap, 7, who won the obstacle course.

Dawn Sparagowski, 9, Heather Sparagowski, 6, and Kim Bagley, took second, third and fourth in the slalom, respectively. Seven-year-old Todd Hensen and Monica Block took second and third in obstacle.

The Skateboard Contest had 40 participants and Donna Lee Zavitz, program co-ordinator for summer programs, took charge of the event, helped by Rec. Dept. assistants, Gary and Jay Barton.

The next skateboard contest is being planned for early October at Romulus City Hall.

Will add 804,000 sq. ft., 300 jobs

Detroit Diesel expands

Detroit Diesel Allison Division of General Motors held two ground breaking ceremonies last Thursday on their 375-acre Romulus, property near Metro Airport.

Charles Karrer, manager of the division's diesel operations, gave details of the new 574,000-square-foot addition to the present Parts Distribution Center and a new 230,000-square-foot Engineering Center to Romulus city officials and company personnel.

In his opening remarks, Karrer said, "We wanted those of you in Romulus City government to share in this ceremony because without the helpful cooperation you have exhibited in the past, we might not be starting these projects here today. Your foresight and action in helping to make Romulus an attractive area for expansion has played a large part in our decision to build these new facilities."

Ground for the Parts Distribution Center addition was broken by General Parts Manager Dennis G. McLampy who, assisted by Karrer and Romulus Mayor James Stewart, used a Detroit Diesel-powered air hammer to break up a piece of the old airport runway on the site. The runway is a remnant of the Stinson Aircraft Company, a name well-known in the aviation industry during the 30's and 40's.

Robert Brueck, manager of industrial government relations, helped welcome visiting dignitaries at the ground-breakings.

The expanded Parts Distribution Center is designed to have the capacity to ship 450 tons of parts per day, according to McLampy.

McLampy explained that the new addition will be fully automated, using computer controlled high-bay storage systems as well as the computer-run mini-stackers for small parts. New packaging equipment will also be used.

Employment at the Parts Distribution Center is expected to increase by about 300 jobs when the project is completed in mid-1980.

Director of Engineering Frank Sinks, who also had the help of Mayor Stewart and Karrer, officially broke ground for the Engineering Center with a Detroit Diesel-powered front-end loader.

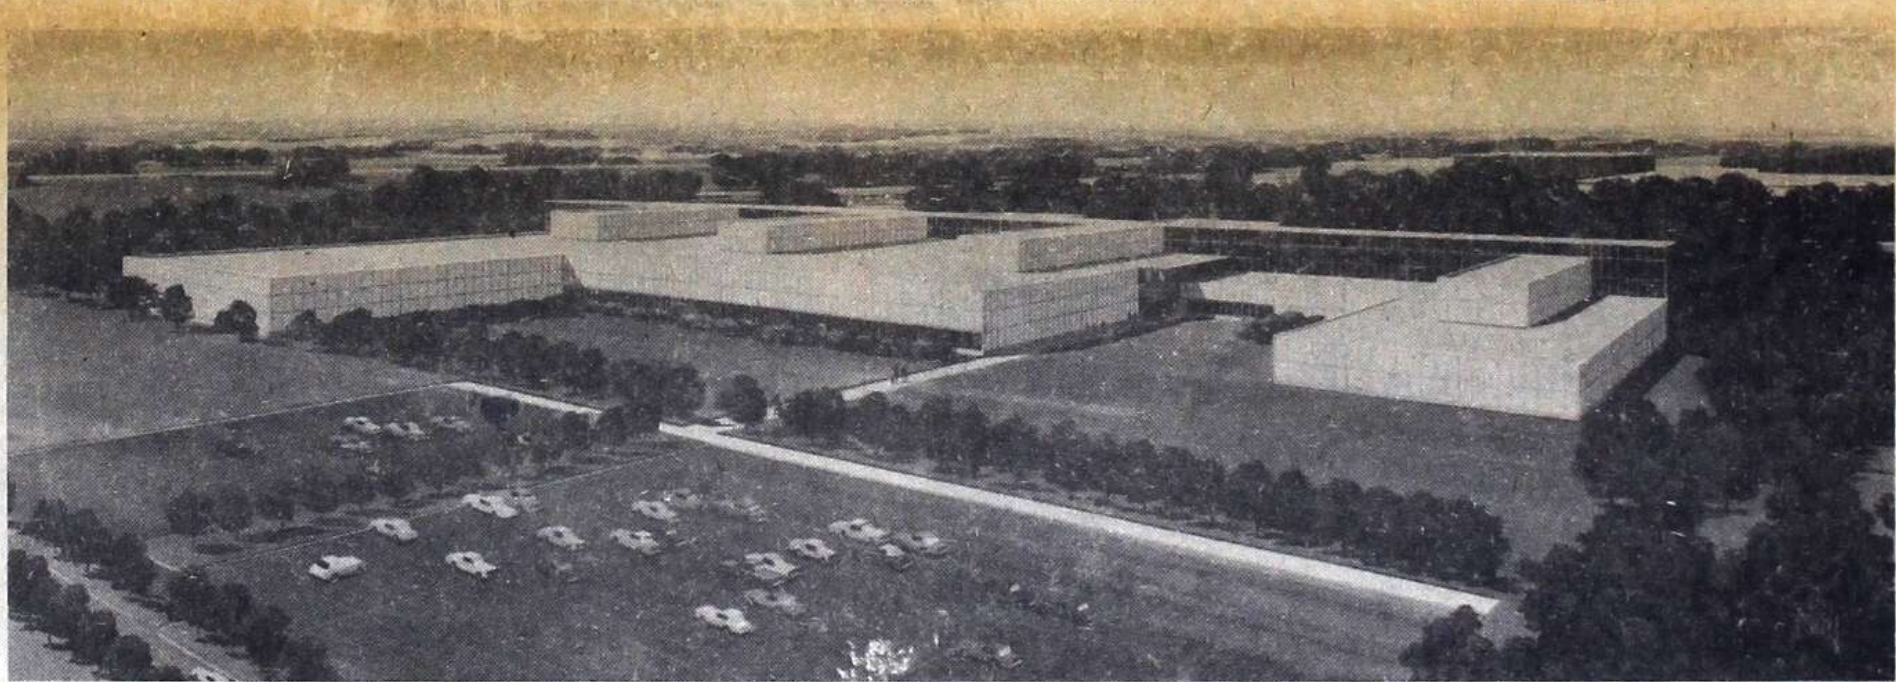

The Engineering Center is expected to be complete in early 1979. It will house 12 engine performance test cells which will be used for engine developmental testing, researching new applications, improving fuel economy and horsepower, and reducing emission levels. Diesel Operations currently has 54 engine test cells in Redford.

The new center will also have areas for instrumentation and component testing.

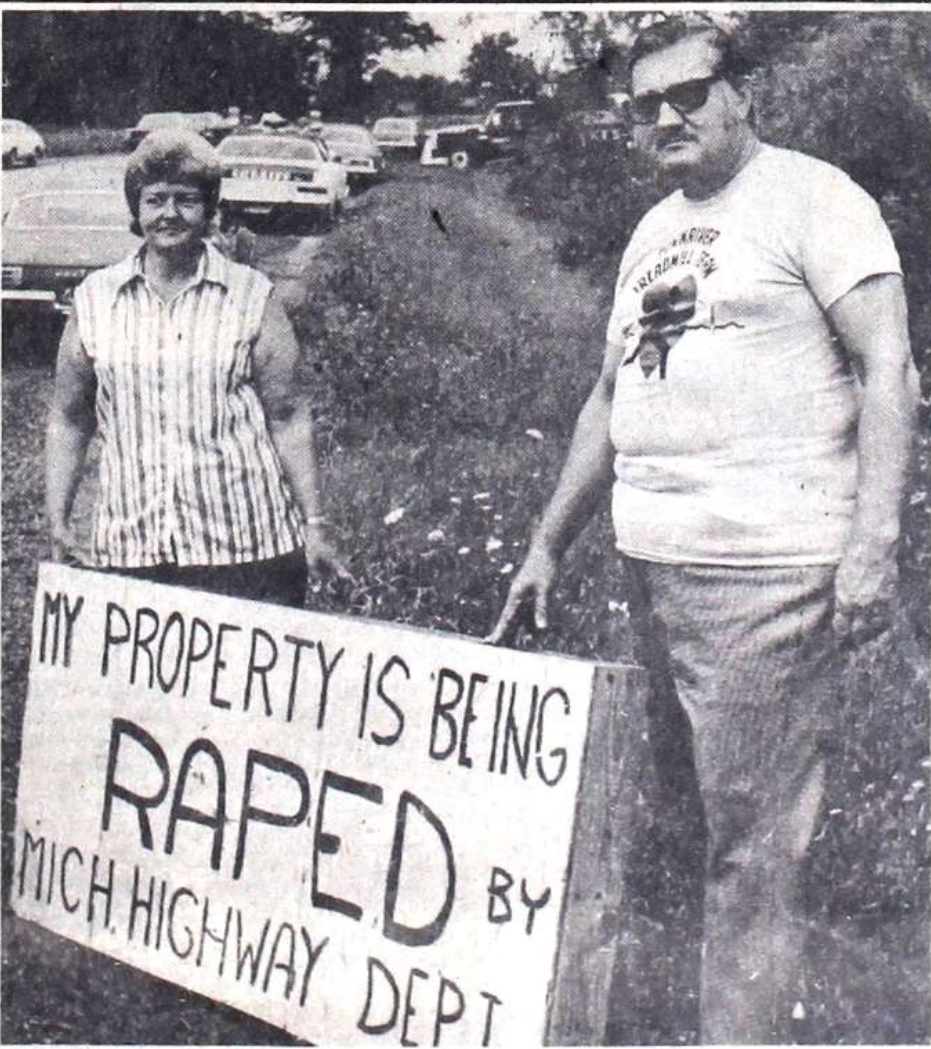

Approximately 75 engineers, technicians, and mechanics will work in the new center.

The latest in proven techniques will be used to protect the environment and conserve energy. Heat generated by the test engines will be recovered and used to supplement the building's heating and air conditioning system.

With the completion of these facilities by mid-1980, Detroit Diesel Allison will have over two million square feet under roof on this 375-acre Romulus site. The division completed a new 780,000 square foot manufacturing plant on this site in 1976 which has become a model of the best in environmental control and aesthetics for an industrial plant.

Residents irate over bike path

Mayor serves papers to restrain workers

Mrs. Marilyn Diepenhorst and her husband, Gerald, display sign in front of their house at 36836 Northline in Romulus protesting where the Michigan Highway Dept. proposes to build a bike path.

The Diepenhorsts contend the bike path should go behind their house, not in front where bulldozers would have to destroy several large trees and possibly endanger lives if underground gas lines are ruptured.

Workers were forced to stop work on the bike path early Monday morning when Mayor James C. Stewart personally served a temporary restraining order signed Sunday by Wayne County Circuit Judge Michael L. Stacey. The Romulus City Council previously had approved the path objected to by the Diepenhorsts.

The court order names as defendants the state Highway Dept. and the Michigan State Highway Commission and orders them to show cause to day why the temporary restraining order should not be made a preliminary injunction. The Diepenhorsts are listed as plaintiffs in the case.

Mayor Stewart served the restraining order on John Kelch, local project director for the state Highway Dept.

Labor Day travel to break '76 record

Michigan's Labor Day weekend should be the third record travel holiday this year as motorists are expected to drive 680 million miles over the 4-day period, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

The previous Labor Day weekend travel record was the 660 million miles Michigan motorists rolled up over a similar 78-hour period in 1976.

"Both this year's Memorial Day and Fourth of July weekends were record-breakers, too, and they set the stage for what could be a 10 to 20 percent increase over last summer's record Bicentennial travel," said Joseph L. Ratke, Auto Club Touring manager.

Over-all for 1977, state officials are predicting travelers will spend some $4.07 billion while on trips in Michigan. That would be 4 percent higher than last year's $3.9 billion direct expenditures for travel and tourism in the state.

"Since tourism is Michigan's second largest industry behind manufacturing, this rise in expenditures will mean much to the state," Ratke said.

He noted that while 1975 and 1976 were bad economically for Michigan, the tourist industry registered increases both years.

"In fact, last year's tourism bonanza generated 200,000 jobs and $131 million in tax revenues for the state treasury," he said.

Statistics show 15 million to 20 million people vacationed in Michigan last year, making it one of the six most-visited states. An additional two million visitors are expected this year.

During the first seven months of this year, the Michigan Travel Bureau received 16 percent more inquiries about vacations in Michigan compared to 1976.

Traditional barometers of tourism, such as fudge sales on Mackinac Island, Mackinac Bridge crossings and state park attendance, all indicate a banner year in 1977.

"We got off to a good start when they sold out of fudge on Mackinac Island over the Memorial Day weekend," Ratke noted. He added that Mackinac Bridge crossings for the first seven months of 1977 are nearly 4 percent above last year's, and state park attendance is running 7 percent ahead of 1976.

Peak travel periods during the Labor Day weekend should be between 7 and 10 p.m. Friday, when motorists start their journeys, and between 2 and 10 p.m. Monday, during the homebound rush.

Auto club is cautioning motorists to observe the gas-saving, life-saving 55-mile-per-hour speed limit to help reverse this year's trend toward higher holiday death tolls. Thirty-one persons died on Michigan highways over the Memorial Day weekend, and the death toll for the July Fourth holiday was even higher — 32.

The 31 persons killed last year over the Labor Day weekend represented the state's highest death toll for that holiday since 1968, when 51 persons were killed.

Class combines play and writer

Lectures and including reserved tickets to the plays is combined in the "Shakespeare and Moliere at the Hilberry '77" series to be offered this fall.

Sponsored by University Courses in Adult Education (College of Lifelong Learning, Wayne State University - The University of Michigan Extension Service) the 5-part series starts Oct. 30, with all of the sessions at Wayne's Hilberry Theatre.

An introduction to Moliere's comedy "School for Wives" opens the series at 2:30 p.m. with participants seeing the play on Nov. 4 at 8:30 p.m.

An introduction to "Romeo and Juliet" will be presented at 2:30 p.m. Nov. 13 and will be followed by attendance at the play on Nov. 18 at 8:30 p.m.

The series concludes with a wrap-up with directors and members of the casts from the Hilberry Repertory Company at 2:30 p.m. Nov. 20.

Again this year the lecturer for the series will be Dr. Philip Traci, WSU Professor of English and Shakespearean critic. Fee for the series

Flanders portrays Truman

Actor Ed Flanders portrays the crusty, down home Harry S. Truman with the aid of a talented makeup artist, the White House Oval Office and the former President's own words when "Harry S. Truman: Plain Speaking" encores on Channel 56 Aug. 24 at 9 p.m., during a week of special shows.

Flanders' Truman calls upon a wide range of emotion from the former President — love for his daughter, Margaret, and his wife, Bess, great anger at Gen. MacArthur, pensive recollections of Franklin Delano Roosevelt and real concern for the "average American".

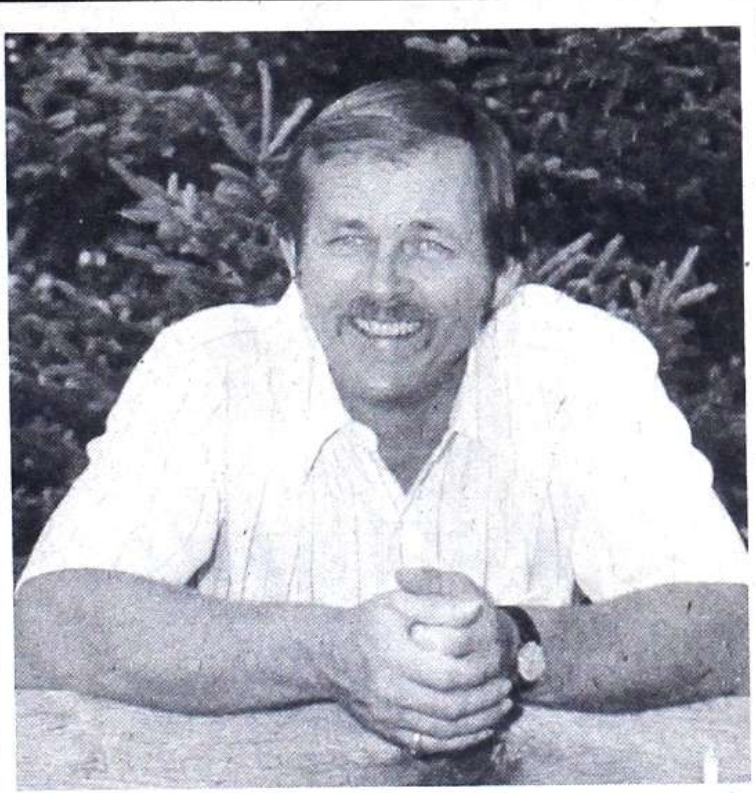

Truman once described himself as a man who "said what he meant and meant what he said". The teleplay uses his own words to depict Truman at the age of 68, reflecting upon his timid childhood, his early jobs, his uncomfortable welcome to Congress, and the events surrounding his life as President of the United States — with candid opinions on the likes of Richard Nixon, Dwight Eisenhower, Joseph Kennedy, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Fidel Castro and Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Such legendary opinions include:

"Old Joe Kennedy's as big a crook as we've got anywhere in this country, and I don't like it a bit that he bought his son the nomination for the Presidency..."

"Nixon, I don't think, knew the difference between the truth and a lie. I can't understand how he got as far as he did..."

We have been trained to handle all sorts of people. This means that we know how to deal with many situations and objections smoothly, and without a great deal of difficulty. For example, one of our cardinal rules is never to argue with a prospective buyer. We know that the point is not to see who is most clever, but to see a property to its best advantage. We will never try to win an argument, knowing that such a winning may actually lose us a sale. Instead, we try to be most business-like in our approach to every buyer and seller.

12 candidates seek city jobs 26 square off in primary election

TERRY TROUTT

BRUCE JONES
Council candidate

GARY BINGAMAN
Independent candidate

With less than two weeks until the Sept. 12 primary election, 26 candidates are squaring off to fill positions of mayor and council in Romulus city government.

Four other candidates, including two incumbents, are vying for city clerk and city treasurer, but no primary will be held for those two offices, since only two candidates have filed for each of those offices.

In line with its announced policy of publishing biographical information submitted by candidates, Associated Newspapers this week brings its readers a rundown on the 10 members of the Troutt slate and two candidates vying for council seats on an independent basis.

Running independently for council, but sharing the same political literature are Ray Cantrell and Gary Bingaman.

Cantrell, 49, has worked for 27 years as an electrician for the Great Lakes Steel Corp., and is also employed part-time as an excavating contractor. He supports housing for Romulus senior citizens and better working relations between council and the city administration.

A veteran of World War II with the U. S. Navy, Cantrell attended school in Ashland, Ky., and Cass Tech. He is a member of United Steel Workers Union Local 1299, Masonic Order Lodge 170, F&AM of Wyandotte, and the Moslem Temple of Detroit.

A resident of Romulus for 11 years and of Wayne County for 28 years, Cantrell and his wife, Pauline, have two children, Raymond and Linda. They reside at 16080 Dodge, Romulus.

Gary Bingamen, 31, former administrative assistant to the city of Romulus in 1974, since 1975 has been licensed by the state of Michigan to implement insured pension trusts.

Like Cantrell, Bingamen also supports expanded senior citizens programs and development of senior citizen housing. He and Cantrell also are in favor of federally-funded community recreation center, expansion of fire and police protection, new paving and sewer programs and establishment of an open door policy to all citizens on their problems and ideas.

Bingamen served for three years with the U.S. Army in Viet Nam. He is a charter member of the Romulus Lions Club, served as chairman of the 1974 Romulus Cleanup Program and is active in the Romulus Softball League.

He, his wife, Mary, and two daughters, Michelle, and Nicole, reside at 35540 Margaret, Romulus.

In the primary race for mayor, Incumbent James C. Stewart is being challenged by former mayor, Terry Troutt, and William Oakley, Romulus councilman.

Pushing his 10-candidate slate, Troutt relies strongly upon his political background, which also includes eight years as Romulus Township supervisor, and two years as state senator from the 13th district.

Troutt also served as chairman of the Wayne County Board of Supervisors ways and means committee and is affiliated with the UAW-CIP labor union. He has served as director on the People's Community Hospital Authority and as chairman of the 15th Congressional District Democratic Organization.

During his term as mayor from 1973-75, Troutt claims to have completed more than 46 miles of road paving, gave the city its biggest recreational program, initiated snow removal, removed blighted buildings, obtained federal funds for new fire station and plans for 34th District Court, reorganized Department of Public Works, hired an industrial coordinator, and gave the city a Master Plan.

Troutt, 56, was born in Kennett, Mo., and has lived in Romulus since 1941. He, his wife, and two daughters reside at 16365 Farnum, Romulus. A member of the VFW Post 9568 in Romulus since 1946, he served with the U. S. Navy for four years in the Pacific.

Attempting to unseat Leonard Folmar as city clerk is Gerald (Jerry) Kubiak, 45, director of public safety. He is campaigning on a platform calling for more efficient operation of the clerk's office, thus eliminating waste of the taxpayers' money. He is strongly opposed to all tax increases.

A member of the Troutt team, Kubiak has resided in Romulus for eight years and claims civic involvement for the past seven years.

He served four years in the U.S. Navy and 16 years with the Michigan National Guard. He has served as chairman of the Romulus Goodfellows, chairman of the Police, Fire and Safety Commission, treasurer of the Romulus Democratic Club, executive board member of the 15th Congressional Democratic District, and second precinct delegate for two terms.

He and his wife, Lorraine, reside at 28490 Cherry, Romulus. They have two daughters, Mrs. William C. (Debbie) Cox, and Beverly Jean, a junior at Romulus High School.

Also a stalwart member of the Troutt team is incumbent city treasurer, John B. Lewkowicz, now completing his second term. He is campaigning on a platform of a proven record for hard work, dedication and insistence upon spending city funds in accordance with the city charter.

Lewkowicz, 59, emphasized his office has earned $957,000 in interest through investments for local taxpayers and the receipt of several grant funds.

He has served as treasurer of the Romulus Democratic Club for 10 years, Romulus Township Board of Water Commissioners, member of the local Kiwanis Club and served as negotiator and chairman for the UAW Local 174, Rockwell International.

He is a member of VFW Post 9568, a member and usher of St. Aloysius Church, former Scout master, former member of board of canvassers and treasurer of the 15th Democratic Congressional District.

He and his wife, Pauline, are parents of five sons and three daughters and reside at 36723 Grant Rd., Romulus.

One of the seven members of the Troutt slate running for council is Mary L. Carter, 40, director of local housing and urban renewal since September of 1975. She has worked for the city of Romulus in several positions since 1959.

She advocates being responsive to the needs of all of the community — senior citizens, schools and industry. She stresses that city employees and elected officials are servants of the people and favors public service jobs for the unemployed, Day Care centers, senior citizen housing and a shopping center for the city.

Mrs. Carter graduated from Romulus High School in 1955 and attended Cleary College, Southern Illinois University, Wayne County Community College, and University of Detroit and has a certificate in real estate practice from the Detroit School of Real Estate.

She lives with her son, Michael, and daughter, Josephine, at 35422 Smith, Romulus.

GERALD KUBIAK

ROBERT KNIGHT

RAY CANTRELL
Independent candidate

John R. Ryznar, 49, also a member of the Troutt team for council is a lifelong resident of Romulus. He wants to halt loose spending in Romulus and calls for unity in working together for the city.

He has been a member of the Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers Local 25 for 25 years and is certified by the Department of Building and Safety Engineering. He is a member of St. Aloysius Church and PNA Lodge 3218.

Ryznar and his wife, Mary Ann, have seven children, Marsha, Diane, Elaine, Mary Ann, John, Dorothy and Susan.

Harry W. Nelson, campaigning on the Troutt slate for council, wants to hold the line on taxes and to stop loose city spending.

He retired from the U.S. Air Force as a technical sergeant after 20 years of service. He has served on the executive boards of the 15th Congressional Democratic District and the Romulus Democratic Club.

Nelson is a member of Labrador Consistory 76, St. Luke Lodge 111, Romulus APA, Kiwanis Club, Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity and the Church of the Living God. He graduated from the University of Nebraska.

Barry Bauman, 26, youngest member of the Troutt slate for council, includes in his literature an endorsement from former gubernatorial aspirant, Sander Levin, as a dedicated and conscientious campaign worker.

Bauman's submitted biographical information did not include what he stands for

BARRY BAUMAN
Council candidate

and will do if elected. His list of memberships and past accomplishments include: BA degree, St. Mary's College; elected precinct delegate in 1972 and 1974; member of Romulus Democratic Club, former board member of 15th Congressional Democratic District; former executive board member of Michigan Democratic Party, Romulus South Little League manager; former member of Romulus Athletic Club; former member of Romulus Jaycees; campaign coordinator for Sen. William Faust; Romulus campaign chairman for Levin; college student organizer for Sen. Philip Hart; national student chairman of "Muskie for President" and college class president.

Bauman is single and is a lifelong resident of Romulus.

The only incumbent on the Troutt team running for reelection to council is Beverly McAnally, 50, now serving in her second term of office. She is opposed to squandering of the taxpayers' money.

A writer and former newspaperwoman, Mrs. McAnally attended the University of Kansas City, Park College and Kansas City Institute of Fine Arts and Design.

She served on the city planning commission, was an organizer of the Romulus Community Market, board member of Southwestern Mental Health Association, board member of United Community Services, SEMCOG delegate, member of Michigan Municipal League Transportation committee and board member and founder of Romulus Help Center.

Mrs. McAnally also is a founder of the Romulus Community Schools Continuing Education program, founder of Romulus YWCA pre-school nursery, founder of Hayti School Dental Care program, founder of Merriman School PTA, former president of Hayti School PTA, former president of Romulus Area PTA Council, out-county chairman for American Cancer Society, Bicentennial committee member, member of Southwestern Planning Council YWCA, executive board member of PTSA, member of Romulus Democratic Club, trustee for 15th Congressional Democratic District, member of Merriman School design committee, Jaycee "Woman of the Year" in 1972, and mayor pro tem 1973-75.

She has been married for 28 years to her husband, Earl. They have three children, Andrea, Patrice and Daniel, and reside in Romulus.

Bruce Jones, 33, also is seeking a seat on Romulus Council as a member of the Troutt team. He favors good government through teamwork and togetherness with the people.

Jones served four years in the U.S. Air Force and has been employed by the Ford Motor Co., Dearborn, for the last nine years. He attended New Mexico State University and Henry Ford Community College.

He is a member of St. Aloysius Church, the 15th Congressional Democratic District, Romulus Democratic Club and the Cory School PTO, of which he is vice president, and the Wayne County Sportsman's Club.

He and his wife, Pat, reside at 9440 Washington, Romulus, with their four children, Marty, Chris, Eve and Erik.

Last member of the Troutt slate for council is Robert (Bob) Knight, 38, who has lived in Romulus since 1967. He advocates economy in city spending and to hold the line on taxes.

Employed as a rural letter carrier by the U.S. Postal Service, Knight is currently president of the Wayne County Rural Letter Carriers' Association. Interested in the total development of children, he has been active in the Romulus Athletic Club, having been vice president in 1975 and 1976 and unit director in 1976.

A graduate of Trenton High School, Knight served for three years with the military police of the U.S. Army. He served as vice president of the Harrison PTA and president of Harrison and Merriman PTAs. He also was a three-year delegate to the Romulus Area PTA Council.

Knight and his wife, Diane, reside at 15781 Colbert with their three children, Rob, Marty, and Kellie.

Pack your swimsuit for Lake Huron trip

(This is the 13th in a series of 15 weekly articles on bicycle touring through Michigan. These features are designed to encourage Michigan tourism and promote bicycling near population centers.)

Pack a swimsuit and binoculars for a scenic 123-mile bicycle trip past Lake Huron's white sandy beaches and picturesque old lighthouses, huge limestone quarries resembling the moon's surface and the cascading water of Lower Michigan's only waterfall, advises Automobile Club of Michigan.

The route follows US-23 between Alpena and Rogers City, detours to beautiful Presque Isle Harbor via county roads, then travels inland through forested vacationland and rolling farm country via more county roads and M-65, M-68 and M-32.

For a 75-mile trip covering just the eastern portion of the route, bikers can use M-65 to link up with US-23 and M-32.

The most scenic stretch of pedaling is at Presque Isle Harbor, where deer often cross the road to flee into woods that stretch to Lake Huron's shore.

Bikers will be glad they packed swimsuits and binoculars once at the sandy beach and old lighthouse which can be climbed for a breathtaking view of sailboats anchored in the harbor's clear blue water.

The lighthouse is reached either by leaving US-23 at Grand Lake Road and going north to County Road 406—a distance of about 13 miles—or by leaving US-23 at CR-638 and traveling east seven miles. CR-638 is gravel for about two miles, but it is well-graded and the forest views are worth the trip.

The Old Presque Isle Lighthouse, built in 1840 when the harbor was a busy Great Lakes port, now is a museum, and the restored light keeper's cottage and light are open to the public. A climb up the lighthouse's handchiseled stone stairs is rewarded by a panoramic view of blue water and lush green forests.

About a mile north is the now-automated U.S. Coast Guard Lighthouse, built in 1871. Its grounds make up a county-owned park where bikers can picnic and rest.

Presque Isle Harbor is 23 miles north of Alpena and 20 miles south of Rogers City. Both Alpena and Rogers City boast beautiful municipal beaches and city parks, and their location in the midst of huge limestone deposits has made them world famous.

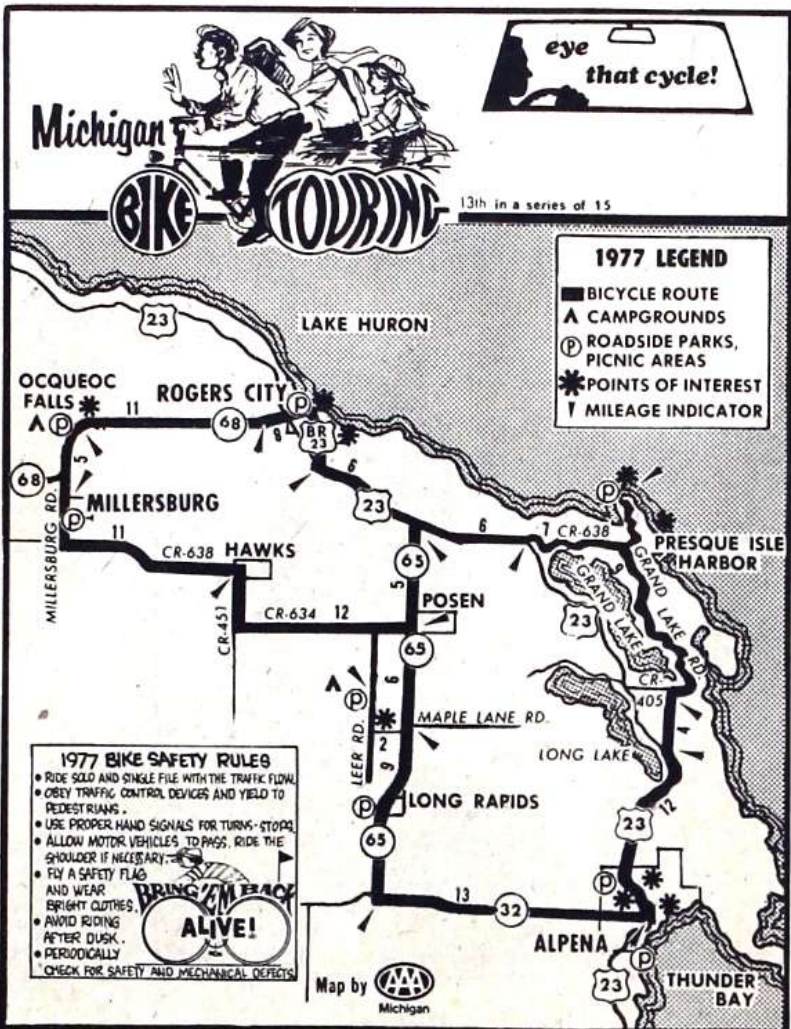

U.S. Steel's limestone operations at its Calcite Quarry in Rogers City are the world's largest and can be viewed by leaving US-23 at BR-23 and traveling a half-mile north to Quarry View. This lookout station is staffed by a guide in summer and a picnic table and restrooms are available to visitors.

The quarry, five miles long and three miles wide, resembles a vast wasteland similar to the moon's surface. Harbor View on the lakefront in Rogers City gives bikers a chance to see Great Lakes ships being loaded with limestone from mountains of the crushed rock.

Limestone is a basic material in the production of Portland cement, and Huron Portland Cement Co. at Alpena is the largest cement plant in the world.

While in Alpena, also visit the Wildfowl Sanctuary, where a nickle buys corn from a machine to feed the birds, and the Jesse Besser Museum, named for the industrialist who developed the first concrete block machine.

The museum has an Avenue of Swimsuits and binoculars will come in handy for bicyclists who tour Lake Huron's white sandy beaches and picturesque old lighthouses on a scenic 123-mile trip linking Alpena and Rogers City. Climbing the steps of an 1840 lighthouse at Presque Isle Harbor or diving into the cascading water of Ocqueoc Falls—Lower Michigan's only waterfall—are among adventures awaiting bikers who make the complete tour via US-23, M-68, M-65, M-32 and less-traveled roads in Presque Isle and Alpena counties. At Rogers City, the limestone quarry is the largest in the world and resembles craters on the moon. Alpena has the world's largest cement plant, and Automobile Club of Michigan also recommends stops at the city's wildfowl sanctuary and the Jesse Besser Museum. For a 75-mile trip covering just the eastern portion of the route, bikers can use M-65 to link up with US-23 and M-32 and stop at Posen, where a potato festival is held each fall. There are campgrounds, motels, restaurants and parks along the route, and both Rogers City and Alpena have municipal beaches.

1890 Shops inside and outside a fence made of iron ore and a bow anchor, both taken from the steamer Pewabic, which sank off Thunder Bay Island in 1865. Three 19th century buildings have been moved to the museum grounds and are being restored.

Both loops of the bike tour include the farming community of Posen on M-65, where a potato festival is held every September. Spud Road is located just a mile east of town.

Bikers who take the complete circle tour extending to Rogers City, then west and south on M-68, see Lower Michigan's only waterfall—Ocqueoc Falls. There is a campground adjacent to the falls, and kids and adults alike get a kick out of diving under the cascading water.

Leaving M-68 at Millersburg Road, the route continues through Millersburg and Hawks via CR-638, CR-451 and CR-634 before rejoining M-65 at Posen. Most of CR-638 traverses forestland dotted with lakes and resort cottages. The rest of the trip to Posen is along miles of cornfields.

There is a community park with a swimming hole at Millersburg. Just southwest of Posen, Fletcher County Park offers swimming, picnicking and camping. To reach Fletcher Park, leave M-65 at Maple Lane Road and travel west one mile to Leer Road, then go north another mile.

At the intersection of Maple Lane and Leer, there is a prehistoric sinkhole—a pit about 150 feet deep formed by the interaction of water with limestone. There are other sinkholes in the area. Most are on private property and permission must be obtained from the owner before trying any "sinkhole searching".

Following M-65 south to the intersection of M-32, bikers will find another delightful resting place at the park in Long Rapids. From the M-65 and M-32 intersection, it is just 13 miles east to Alpena.

Motels and campgrounds are situated along the route, and bikers should have no trouble finding parks for rest stops.

Bicyclists should pave themselves according to their ability. The League of American Wheelmen estimates the average bicyclist can cover 35 to 50 miles a day with ease. A card and pamphlet containing bicycle safety tips are available free at all Automobile Club of Michigan offices.

Free hearing test available at clinic

Free hearing and vision tests for preschool and school-aged children will be offered at two clinic locations by the Wayne County Health Department.

Screening tests are now being conducted at the Eloise Health Center on Merriman Road, a quarter mile north of Michigan Avenue through Sept. 2, 8:30 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 3:30 p.m. No appointment is necessary.

Hearing and vision testing is also available at the South Health Center, located west of I-75 in the Pier I Shopping Center from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. on Aug. 29th. No appointment is necessary. Call 274-2800, ext. 356, for further information.

Mrs. Lee Flanagan, hearing and vision coordinator for the health department, in announcing the clinic schedule, emphasized the importance of detecting hearing and vision problems early in a child's life.

"Many children are thought to be poor learners in school, only to find out later that they couldn't see or hear properly," Mrs. Flanagan said.

Church fest set

"Hamburger Villa" will be open for business, and the Impala Orchestra will be providing the entertainment when St. Aloysius Church of Romulus hosts its annual Labor Day Festival beginning at 6 p.m. Saturday.

Games, rides and bingo will be added features of the event.

On Sunday chicken dinners will be served in the school dining room from 12 noon to 6 p.m., while Bozo the Clown is slated to appear at 3 p.m., followed by famous "Big Daddy" Lackowski and his Orchestra at 5 p.m.

On Labor Day, spaghetti dinners will be served from 12 noon to 6 p.m. Mandara the Magician will appear in person at 3 p.m., with the Horizon Orchestra to perform at 5 p.m.

A grand raffle at 10 p.m. will close out the 3-day festival.

The church is located at 11280 Ozga Road, Romulus.

Summer intern

A former Romulus resident spent his summer in Washington, D.C., acting as an intern in the office of Congressman William D. Ford (D-15th District). Curtis A. Mudd, now living in Orlando, Fla., appeared with Congressman Ford on the steps of the nation's Capitol. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mudd, will return this month to Florida Technological University, where he will be majoring in marketing. His father, a former businessman in Romulus, is a past president of the Romulus Rotary Club. The Mudds moved to Florida eight years ago.

Community services: Who does what Troubled? Need help or information, but you don't know where to turn?

Hundreds of community services are available to help you prevent, remedy or relieve a critical or frustrating situation, if you learn where and how to find them. They include health and social services paid by your tax dollars or by your contributions to United Foundation's Torch Drive. Or they are programs sponsored through other non-profit private sources, such as service clubs, neighborhood groups and religious organizations.

The final listing of services available to residents, compiled by the United Community Services of Metropolitan Detroit, include help for mental problems, recreation and leisure time, residential care and treatment, senior citizen programs and services and transportation.

Spraying gets rid of wasps

This week's tips from the Garden Doctor include:

Q: Our tomatoes aren't ripening. What can be done?

A: If the only symptom is a hesitancy to ripen nothing can be done to hurry them. Plenty of direct sunshine will aid the ripening, so each spring select planting sites with maximum sun. But for now, patience is the only recommendation. Cutting away tomato leaves will lessen the food producing potential of the plant and may promote "sun-burning", if leaf removal is excessive.

Q: How will we know when our cantaloupes are ripe?

A: Cantaloupes will yellow somewhat between the netting of the rind. At this time pick up the melon. If the stem disconnects from the fruit, it is ripe. If the stem does not fall away, set the melon down and try again in a couple of days.

Q: Birds are feeding on our lawn in large numbers. Does this mean we have a grub problem?

A: Birds will feed on many insects, not only those considered lawn pests. Don't assume you need to treat for grubs without first verifying that they are present in large numbers. Cut an lift one square foot of sod in the suspected area. Examine the root zone. If there are several grubs per square foot and the lawn is browning, then treat with Diazinon or Chlordane.

Q: How can we store our leftover seeds until next year?

A: Store seeds in tightly closed containers where it's cool. A tablespoon of powdered milk can be folded inside a tissue and put into the storage container to absorb any moisture that may seep in. The germination rate will decline a bit, even under the best of conditions, but can be rectified by sowing year-old seeds more heavily.

Q: We have fusarium blight in our lawn and want to resod. What can we use on the soil so we won't get the disease in our new lawn?

A: There is no effective soil treatment for the prevention of this disease. Your best step to alleviate the symptoms is to choose a blend of bluegrasses, which has one of the following grasses as one of its components: Adelphi, Cheri, Baron, Majestic, Parade or Touchdown. These have some natural resistance. Secondly, if your soil is extremely sandy or a hard clay improve it by mixing in liberal amounts of peat, compost, decomposed, sawdust or topsoil.

Q: I've reseeded my lawn in the past, but the seed never comes up. What is wrong?

A: The usual cause is neglecting to keep the soil surface moist at all times for the 2- to 3-week period after seeding. That means watering as often as twice a day, if it's hot and dry. If fertilizer is not mixed into the soil, but only sprinkled on the surface in close proximity to the seeds, sprouting also will be hampered. Another cause may be that such a volume of water was put on the seedbed that the seeds were washed away.

Yesterday Dayton, tomorrow our community?

A sign of the times and a sad testimonial to the way some public officials are meeting their responsibilities was the recent strike of firefighters in Dayton, Ohio.

Dayton became the fishbowl of the nation as millions of Americans sat glued to their television sets watching the Dayton firemen stand by and let homes in that city go up in flames.

This situation was the result of the firemen's dissatisfaction with contract negotiations between their union and the city.

Following more than a year of discussion between the firemen and the city, the firemen's union made the decision to 'strike' in order to bring its message more clearly before the public.

While we can accept the fact that the firefighters may have felt that they had no other choice other than to strike, it is the result of their actions that raises serious questions regarding the right of civil servants to strike.

Looking at the situation in Dayton on the basis of the individual fireman, there is little question that these men are dedicated to their jobs of protecting the public. But, when these same individuals stood by and watched while entire homes were being consumed by flames, then it has to be assumed that it was peer pressure that forced them into such an outrageous situation.

It will now be the task of those Dayton firemen to explain to the citizens of their community how they could have possibly made such a decision. This decision forced many residents of Dayton to stand by helplessly and watch all their worldly goods go up in smoke, to watch while their entire lives were being wiped out before their very eyes.

The explanation that the firefighters now owe the citizens of their community will be extremely difficult to sell.

The results of their 14-day strike will require years to undo. Not only will the lost personal property which resulted from the walkout require years to replace, if ever, but the loss of the public trust in their civil servants will also take a considerable amount of time to be restored.

We feel that the firefighters in Dayton are the losers. We feel that the city of Dayton also is the loser, and more importantly, we feel that the citizens of Dayton who placed their trust in the system are the biggest losers of all.

It is time for society to address the problems that are facing us. Rather than hide our heads, we must now go to work to develop concrete solutions to problems such as strikes by civil servants.

It would have not been an extreme move in our eyes for the firefighters involved in this strike to have been dismissed from their positions as a result of their action.

Somewhere, a line must be drawn between community interest and self interest.

That line must favor the members of the community. Yesterday it was Dayton, tomorrow could it be our community?

The Bald Eagle Speaks

Murder everyone's responsibility

By BOB AMEEN

A recent crime story prompted me to reflect upon rampant murders, which take the lives of thousands yearly in the United States, and to comment upon this tragic 20th Century illness.

Part of my duties at Associated Newspapers is covering the general news beat for the Inkster Ledger-Star. In doing so, I attend council meetings, and it was there that I first saw Charles Thompson, director of the Inkster Housing and Development Commission.

I did not know the elderly gentleman except for a telephone call which I made to him sometime back concerning a news story. I did hear him talk at several council sessions in the course of his duties as housing director.

Mr. Thompson seemed like a kindly gentle senior citizen and the type of person who would not harm a fly.

Imagine my surprise last Thursday morning upon coming to work to find out that he had been stabbed to death at his home a few short hours earlier.

My thoughts turned to the subject of murder. I felt, that regardless of what kind of human being Mr. Thompson was, or anyone else for that matter, for them to be so coldly dispatched from this world certainly is not on the Creator's game plan for any of us.

I tried to imagine myself in a position or situation in which I would have to kill another human being. Save for self defense, a predicament in which someone else was attempting to take my life, or a spot where the lives of my loved ones were threatened, I could not visualize myself killing anyone purposely.

I could imagine shooting someone attempting to break into my house or stealing my property, and having them die from injuries sustained.

At this point in my reflections, I came to some conclusions, strictly my own. For one human to take the life of another deliberately, that person must be mentally deranged, or the universal sense of values against taking a life, implanted in most of us while still young children, is missing.

Every religious denomination I've ever come across, from Christianity to Buddhism, teaches against taking the life of a fellow human being. In almost every case, parents who belong to or subscribe to specific religious philosophies, instruct their offspring that it is morally wrong to murder or to kill. In the same vein, churches, schools and almost every area of society preach the same moral consideration — that human life is precious, God-given, and not to be snuffed out at the hands of his fellow human.

Americans, on the whole, would like to sit back and look down their noses at the rest of the world, believing that they are so superior in just about every way. But, the sad truth is that our nation leads the world in murder on a per capita basis, and by a big, big margin!

All of us, from the President on down to the average every-day working parent, must share in the blame for the lack of proper training in our young people in behavior patterns commensurate with the boasted-about high morals and principles in this land of democracy.

We must all take a good long, hard look at ourselves, determine what it is we are doing wrong, and take constructive steps that will lead to stemming more and more murders throughout our country.

I heard a startling statistic the other day which shocked me. During one year, I believe it was either 1975 or 1976, more murders were committed in Detroit for that one-year period than in an entire five years of fighting in Ireland between the Catholics and the Protestants!

Almost every American without exception will state that he or she knows it is wrong to kill another human. But, it is that small, very small segment of our society that is responsible for almost all murders in our nation.

Therefore, the rest of society, the "good" guys, must take it upon themselves to properly train each and every child in the sacredness and preciousness of the life so miraculously bestowed upon us by God. By doing this, possibly we can greatly reduce, even almost wipe out, that small group of teenagers and adult "bad" guys perpetrating murders in our land.

Meet our news editor

Associated Newspapers is now approaching its ninth month of operation following acquisition of the newspaper chain from Panax Corporation. We at Associated feel that it is time for us to introduce you to the members of the Associated staff who make the decisions on the quality and content of our publications. We have made it our goal to improve community communications through our pages. We believe it is working.

The men and women who you will meet in the coming weeks are the reasons for the new successes being experienced by Associated. It is through their efforts that we are able to bring you the news of your community, unbiased and fairly reported.

Sue McDonald
News Editor

Who am I you might ask, and I by chance may reply that I am me. But for those who believe in formal introductions, I am Sue McDonald, Westland resident and News Editor at Associated Newspapers.

Born Dec. 6, 1950 to Fran and Jim Happ, then of Dearborn Township and now of Westland, I was to discover at a young age that my family, which included three brothers and one sister, had a penchant for moving.

At the ripe age of five, I found myself relocated in Taylor Township. Life was secure there until the sixth grade when the moving van pulled up to our sprawling ranch, loaded up our belongings and sent us on our way to Norristown—just put on the map by a gas mixup at its hospital—Penna. It was a shock to my system, but not as much as the next four years.

Within two years to the day of our move to Pennsylvania, the moving van arrived a third time. This was to be our furthest move away from the State of Michigan. We were off to Cali, Colombia (two O's please), South America, for a 3-year stint with Uniroyal.

We lasted 18 months in a tropical climate that had highs of 85 and lows of 75, day in and day out.

Colombia was an interesting experience. With three of their five children in tow, the Happs set up housekeeping in a Philadelphia-style rowhouse, painted a lovely shade of battleship gray. For 18 months, we lived under martial law, endured general strikes, riots and asundary other problems associated with being an American abroad.

It was about that time I decided social work was the career for me. After crying my way through "West Side Story" I was certain, the world needed me.

That aspiration lasted about a year, after which I discovered journalism... a chance introduction that came through forced electives at The Colegio Bolivar high school I attended.

As I said our stay in Colombia lasted only 18 months, and once again the movers arrived. We were on our way home. Home this time would be a former resort town in northern New Jersey, nestled amid five lakes and known as Mountain Lakes, of course.

My life there was filled with the pressure of attending an accelerated high school, where faculty members proudly announced that 99.9 percent of the graduates went on to college. They failed to add that 50 percent dropped out before the end of their freshman year.

Summers were spent lakeside or on the turnpikes for visits with the folks back home. And my two older brothers made the pilgrimage from college every weekend to clean out the refrigerator.

Our stay there lasted two years, and just prior to the start of my senior year, the moving van arrived... for the final time. The trek was back to Michigan, to Westland to be exact, where my family has lived since 1967.

I completed my schooling at John Glenn High School and went on to complete four years at Wayne State University in Detroit, there acquiring my bachelor of arts degree in journalism.

"Sheep skin" in hand, I was ready for the work world, but only after a brief vacation... 3½ months on a grand tour of Europe that covered 13 countries, an uncountable number of cities and thousands of miles by train, boat and plane.

It was an exhilarating, confidence-building experience. From Reykjavik, Iceland, to Pireaus, Greece, it was an education in itself.

But all good things must end and it was time to face up to my responsibility. So in late 1972, I began my career as a journalist, working for $90 a week at The Dearborn Guide. After a year there as an editor-reporter, I made my big move to Associated Newspapers, becoming copy editor. In the brief 11 months that followed that move, I was to go back to my first love, reporting, then move up to the duties of news editor, a position I've held since November 1974.

And it was in 1974, I married Bill McDonald, a Westland city employee I met while working for the Guide. Former Canton Township residents, we now live in Westland with our two dogs, Casey and Buddy.

If there are two things I've learned in my brief 26 (and three-quarters years) on this planet, it's a love of travel and a love of journalism.

Somewhat withdrawn because of my many moves, journalism allows me to say it like it should be said, but in print. The love of travel I got from my father. Someday I hope to combine the two.

But until then, I'll divide my time between my home, my husband and Associated Newspapers.

You can't drown in clothes

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

On January 1, our littlest one came downstairs and said, "Is this next year?" Wetold her it was and she started jumping up and down, laughing and shouting and that got George (our dog) to laughing and leaping and then she rode him upstairs.

Five seconds later she came streaking down, climbed up on her chair and ate her brother's breakfast.

I'm all packed," she said. "You're all packed?" I asked. "Where are you going?"

"It's next year," she said, "And I'm going to the Silver Lodge Mullet Lake."

During the next six months she packed five more suitcases and her brother packed seven. And we had to borrow another car just to lug our teenager's clothes.

The sun was shimmering on the lake as we pulled into Silver Lodge and all of the kids tumbled out of the car and tumbled into the lake.

"Let the kids unpack their own bags," the father of my kids said as the sweat poured of him and each bag got heavier. Now summer vacations are wonderful for the sturdy hearted and I am sturdy hearted, but my love tends towards hyperventilation.

One of his attacks occurred the evening he came in from a round of golf and almost drowned in the puddle of water on the kitchen floor. If it hadn't been for the kid making the puddle, he probably would have, but he grabbed hold and held on until he got to dry ground.

Then he collapsed on a chair and said to his kid, "I haven't seen you out of a puddle of water since we got here. Neither have I seen you in anything but those cut-off jeans."

"That's what you're supposed to wear on vacation," the kid said.

"Then how come I brought fifteen bags of clothes?" Papa asked.

"Those were for the girls," my kid said from the bottom of the peanut butter jar. So the father of my kids said to his daughter: "How come I haven't seen you in anything but bikinis since we got here?"

"Because that's what you're supposed to wear at the lake," they said as they licked on the leftover peanut butter knife.

"Then how come I brought up fifteen bags of clothes?" he asked, reasonably enough.

"Well, gee, dad, you never can tell when we might need them," they answered as they disappeared on a sailboat.

The morning we left, dad awakened with the dawn and we piled the unopened bags into the car, dragged the wet, wrinkled cut-offs from a puddle in the corner, took the wet bikinis off the foot of the bed, wrapped the kids in blankets and came home.

"Gee, it's good to be home," the kids muttered as they opened their eyes. Then they unlocked the suitcases, tried on everything, and took off to find their friends, leaving a heap of clothes in the middle of the floor.

"Well, it's better than a puddle," their father said. "You can't drown in clothes."

From the State Senate

Child porno legislation passes senate

Michigan will become one of the first states in the country to protect children from being exploited in pornographic material if legislation adopted today in the Senate is signed into law.

The two-bill package, I sponsored prohibits the use of children under 18 years of age in pornographic material and imposes tough penalties on violators of the measures. The legislation also establishes reporting procedures with the Department of Social Services when cases of child pornography are suspected.

I am pleased that the Senate moved so promptly on this needed legislation because I believe it will protect many children from the undue emotional, psychological and physical harm that is caused by the pornography trade.

As the sponsor of this legislation I want to make it clear that my intent is not to interfere with the First Amendment's freedom of speech guarantees; however, no rational person can possibly believe that such guarantees include the right to exploit young children sexually.

Hopefully, this legislation will also prompt other states across the country to enact similar protective measures.

The current absence of any federal or state laws prohibiting child pornography has resulted in the widespread use of children in pornographic materials.

It has been estimated that some 1.2 million children nationwide have been exploited in this manner. In Michigan alone, police have investigated 12 locations where the pornographic use of children has been reported.

A total of 80 children are believed to have been involved in Muskegon and 30 are suspected to have been exploited in a case in Flint.

Although Michigan has laws governing sexual abuse involving an adult and a child, none deal with acts performed solely by children when they are allowed, encouraged, or enticed by an adult to participate in sexual activity for commercial purposes.

Under terms of my legislation, anyone who allows, arranges or attempts to permit children under 18 to engage in an abusive sexual act for a commercial purpose would be guilty of a felony punishable by a jail term of up to 20 years, a fine up to $20,000 or both.

Persons who make or finance or attempt to produce or bankroll obscene material involving youths also would be subject to the same penalties.

Anyone who plays an "incidental" role in the production or financing of pornographic material involving children under 18 would be liable for a jail sentence of up to 7 years and a $10,000 fine.

Persons who market or display child pornography also would be guilty of a felony punishable by a maximum 7-year sentence and a $10,000 fine.

By imposing harsh penalties on anyone even remotely involved in this traffic, we should be able to help eliminate the child pornography industry throughout the country, not just drive it out of our own state.

In addition to imposing strict penalties on people who abuse children in this way, my legislation includes a provision which should make it easier to identify those people and bring them to trial.

That provision would require child care providers who suspect any abuse to report incidents to the Department of Social Services. The Department, in turn, would be required to report cases to local prosecuting attorneys.

I am working closely with Rep. Larry Burkhalter, the sponsor of identical bills in the House, in order to ensure passage of the legislation.

Good old days revisited

By RUSS TUTTLE
Director, Community Relations
Peoples Community Hospital Authority

As a prelude to this week's column, some words of explanation are evidently in order. I finished last week with some comments (done tongue in cheek, honest!) about the art of dentistry in the 1930's.

Four communications — two letters and two phone calls — make it obvious that some readers misunderstood what I was saying. I'll repeat: the dentistry of 1977 can in no way be compared to the practices of 30 or 40 years ago.

And, believe it or not, that's precisely what I'm trying to accomplish in this series. The only thing good about the good old days, in my judgment, is the fact that they are gone.

Reality demands that we live in the contemporary society. Those who labor to deny this fact and thus who insist on living in the past are inviting a permanent disassociation from the real world.

And that's my theme, so let's continue. There's a lot of talk today about what some think to be a new social phenomenon. They call it mass transit. Good grief, Charlie Brown, we had so-called mass transit in Detroit when I was a mere stripling.

I grew up in Northwest Detroit — about two blocks North of the Grand River-Greenfield intersection. Now in those good old days, if I had managed to scrounge together a few pennies, I liked to go downtown to visit one of the magnificent theatres or the Vernor's Ginger Ale plant at the foot of Woodward Avenue. Usually, there would be two or three of us from our rat pack and we'd try to make an all-day affair of our safari — watching every penny we spent. And that wasn't too hard when you consider that we had precious few pennies anyhow.

The trip was accomplished on the Grand River streetcar, and it cost 6 cents each way. But the ride. The streetcar — or trolley if you came from a Canadian or English background — was a large mass transit machine equipped with steel-hard cane-back seats and as it lumbered down the middle of the street, I'm convinced its motions gave rise to the later-day rock and roll song called "Shake, Rattle, and Roll."

There would be occasional stops for the motorman to get out with a huge crowbar and straighten out a length of track at some intersections (Livernois, for instance) so that we would continue going East, and not turn to the North or South.

It was perhaps 10 to 12 miles from where we'd get a board the streetcar to the bowels of the city. Yet, you could usually bank on a 45-minute trip — and it was not all that uncommon for the ride to take an hour or more.

Now contrast those good old days of mass transit with 1977. I must, from time to time, visit downtown Detroit in the course of my work. My office is next door to the Annapolis Hospital in Wayne, and the distance to downtown approaches 25 miles. Today, I climb in a modern automobile, turn on the air conditioning, pick out a radio station which pleases me, and with power brakes, power steering, and automatic transmission I glide downtown in 35 to 40 minutes. Today's way is clearly preferable to the 6-cent streetcar ride.

Then there was the clothing of the 1930's. I'm sure that every man my age can remember wearing an outrageous pair of trousers known as knickers. Not only did these infantile britches look totally moronic, but they were usually made of corduroy. Now corduroy is a utile, absolutely practical material. But it has one distressing characteristic. When you walked, the ribs would rub together and play a song. One never knew whether he was being followed by three small boys wearing corduroy knickers, or whether a Latino band had infiltrated and was playing an out-of-beat version of the Mexican Hat Dance. Of course there was possibly one saving grace. You never had to worry about being attacked from the rear by anyone wearing corduroy knickers — the attacker would give himself away about 100 yards before he got to your position!

Wash and wear clothing? What was that in the good old days? It wasn't, that what it was. A man's trousers, after only a few hours of wear, had more horizontal creases than the two verticals they were supposed to boast. So there were two choices: get out the damp cloth and the ironing board to get the unwanted creases ironed away, or send the trousers to the dry cleaners for the ministrations.

Today, it's relatively easy. Just drop the trousers into the automatic washer, and from there to the dryer (set for wash and wear, of course), and in a few minutes those britches are once again ready to assume their proper place protecting your dignity and making you look like the Rudolph Valentino of 1977.

And the same holds for dress shirts. No more laborious sessions at the iron slaving to get every wrinkle out of a shirt so stiff with starch that it would practically stand in the corner by itself. No sir. Just wash and dry and hang it up again. Can you remember those stiff, starched collars. A quick turn of your head and you were apt to perform a do-it-yourself decapitation! Ugh.

Compare, if you will, today's antibiotics and wonder drugs to yesterday's whatever. Polio is simply a word in a history book to my 21-year old son and his wife. They have read about Drs. Salk and Sabin and the vaccines developed by these two researchers. But, thank God, they don't have to be worried about the threat of polio. I could take literally 100's of column inches contrasting modern-day medicine and surgical innovations with the good old days. It's not really necessary, is it? If you are honest with yourself, you'll be forced to admit that today is O.K. It's not Utopia, but then I'm not so sure it's supposed to be.

Remember the past, and go to school on it. But for the sake of your own sanity, don't try to live in it.

It can't be done!

Thanks for Every story your help has two sides

To the Editor:

A belated thank-you very much for the publicity and/or notices in your paper's "It's a date" column for the Belleville Bicentennial Second Annual Stamp Bourse held in June.

This went over very well, we believe. There were over 200 visitors, and the eight or so dealers registered no complaints.

For the Committee,
Harold B. Forde

To the editor:

There's two sides to every story so says Jim Bradley ANP Staff Writer as he tells us about the problems at the Wellesley Townhouses in Romulus.

I think the key word here is "every." Too many people hear just one side of a story, get angry or elated whichever the case may be, draw a conclusion and that's it.

Such is the case of the "lemon bill" brought up recently by Rep. Ed Mahalak in your paper.

When the lemon bill was first mentioned in Lansing it was hailed by both the electronic and printed medias and by the car buying public as a great break through in consumer protection.

Finally we can say to those dirty rotten auto dealerships "If you won't fix my car I'll stop payment on it, try that on for size." How many of us would love to do just that.

But stop! As Mr. Bradley points out there are two sides to every story.

I am a former salesman of the aforesaid pieces of iron. Because I am no longer employed by those unspeakable people I feel I can look at both sides objectively.

I have not read the bill proposed so therefore I, like everyone else am going by what Rep. Mahalak and the media say as truth.

First we must ask "What is a lemon? I have had customers come into me and refer to their car as "that lemon you sold me", complaining about "major defects" as the trunk light doesn't work, the ash tray is loose or it's two quarts low on oil after 5,000 miles.

A lemon is an auto that has true major mechanical or electrical problems that nobody can seem to fix.

Who will the lemon bill affect? Those of you who financed your shining piece of junk through a dealership; not those of you who went to your own bank, credit union or paid cash, you are out in the cold.

The end result will be that banks will raise interest rates, toughen their credit standards and make dealerships sign recourse papers on every financed deal.

The dealerships will raise the prices on their cars or will tell you to go get your own money costing you time or loss of work.

The real losers are the borderline credit risks.

If you were sick or injured or unemployed for any period of time and got behind on your bills forget about buying a car because you are listed with the credit bureau as "poor pay."

The credit bureau has no distinction between "can't pay" and "able, but won't pay."

Isn't it ironic that the automobile capital of the world is located in a state that wants to legislate a "lemon bill?"

Who makes these lemons. Not the dealership, not the banks but alot of the same people who scream "I got a Lemon."

The only winners will be the people who have no intention of paying for a car in the first place. They will ride for free in luxury grinning and saying to the rest of us saps "I ain't payin' for this ride baby 'cause I got a lemon, and I ain't payin' till they fixes it."

Again Lansing will pass useless legislation that will protect nobody but the crooks.

We the people will continue to elect lawmakers who will continue to pass this garbage because they are like us who will not go and seek out the other side of the story.

HOW's position refuted

To the Editor:

A spokesperson for HOW Inc. recently wrote in opposition to House Bill 4425, a Bill which if passed would remove the current prohibition on teaching birth control in the public schools in Michigan.

A major premise stated by the writer was that current increases in sexual activities, pregnancies, abortions and V.D. parallel the recent introduction of sex education classes in Michigan schools.

It is currently forbidden by Section 340.782 of Public Act 1955, No. 269 for a classroom teacher to give instruction in birth control or abortion, so that any claim that points to school curriculum as the basis for teenage pregnancies and abortions is unfounded.

Schools in Michigan have not been given an opportunity to teach children how not to get pregnant. To suggest that Michigan schools are responsible for the adolescent sexual ills of the State is without foundation. The schools in my opinion relate to the problem not because of what they teach, but rather because of what they do not teach!

It was also implied that the Minimum Performance Objectives for Health Education in Michigan mandate sex education in the schools. Such is not the case. Sex education is optional in Michigan schools.

The writer also implies that increases in venereal disease are related to increases in V.D. classroom instruction. My professional experience will verify that at least 75 percent of all seniors in Wayne County will not have had a formal venereal disease instruction program upon graduation. According to current estimates, within a typical high school graduating class of 500, 100 students will have had gonorrhea by the time they graduate. Public health officials admit that the V.D. epidemic is primarily an epidemic caused by ignorance, fear and shame; symptoms which seem appropriately suited to the educational process.

Granted, achievement levels attained by some students in some subjects from some schools are inadequate to properly prepare an individual for a productive life. The problem often stems from a student's lack of interest in a particular subject because it may seem to have limited relevance to his or her current goal or needs.

However, it is my experience that when matters pertaining to human sexuality and healthy maintenance of the body are discussed in the classroom, there is never a lack of attention.

It is apparent to me that our children have an overwhelming need to know about themselves and how they relate to their peers — a need that many schools and parents have yet to satisfy.

"It's challenging, it's exhilarating"

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Staff Writer

I love to write.

I find it exciting to be a vibrant part of an always moving panorama of events. To see the course of history unfolded before my eyes, even though in my little corner of the world in Western Wayne County, is a thrilling thing.

Nothing is more stirring than a call from the Managing Editor saying, "Jim, get your pen ready, there's a big story breaking. Take this number." Or he'll tell me to drop what I'm doing and go with our photographer to cover the latest news event.

I find it challenging. I find it exhilarating. I like writing.

Go back with me to my younger days and you'll see I was always putting words together. When I was 14 years old, I remember sitting on a bus travelling from Indianapolis to Detroit. I wrote "the telephone poles by the side of the road marched by like soldiers in single file."

I like descriptive writing. There's something fulfilling about capturing a scene or an event, explaining it all with the correct words, and making it known to the reader.

I like accurate writing. That's my ultimate goal everytime I face this iron monster — my trusty typewriter — and become king of the keyboard. Sometimes the words flow onto the page with fluid ease and other times there's a halting struggle to wrest the words from the machine. Those who study the human body often speak of "bio-rhythms" and there has to be an element of truth in the theory.

Sometimes our mind is at the peak of efficiency, sometimes it's a vacant lot. But through it all — by exercising your talents at the typewriter keyboard — you learn to do your best even when the bio-rhythms are off-key.

Probably the funniest part of all is that when you think you're not ready to write, you turn out your best work. Or perhaps you've struggled to get enough words down on paper to fill up your column and heave a sigh of relief. You turn in the finished product to the Managing Editor and beat a hasty retreat before he gets a chance to see your pathetic effort.

However, you're amazed the next time he talks to you and says "That was the best column you've ever done." That's especially when I like writing. When you feel your "worst" is called your "best", you look forward with tremendous anticipation when you turn in your "best."

But there are times when people don't like what you write in news stories. They have the right, too, to disagree with what you say, or if it is in a story, they have the right to say you didn't tell it like it is. It doesn't mean they're necessarily right or wrong — but everyone has the right to look at a column or story, evaluate it with their accumulated wisdom and make a judgment how good or bad it is.

One danger is, however, the fact that everyone "sees" things from a subjective, or personal, point of view. And many times their personal prejudices will sway their thinking and they honestly believe the writing is wrong when it may be accurate.

Other times, a newspaperman will not quote a person accurately or get the facts of a story straight and someone suffers as a result. I'm constantly amazed at how "leery" people are to talk to a newspaperman. They're afraid of being "misquoted", or doubtful the writer will not tell it "right down the middle".

That's why I strive for accurate reporting everytime I face this metal machine and its keyboard. I love writing and I love honesty, fairness, and giving everyone an equal chance. I also believe in revealing what needs to be revealed, even though some people don't like it, so the public can make the final judgment.

For, after all, it's you, the public, that all the columns and stories are written for. It's you who must make the final assessment on how "good" our writing is.

Yes, I love writing. And I hope that whether you agree or disagree, you enjoy reading what I write.

Belleville-Romulus students complete collegiate studies

Several residents of the Belleville-Romulus community were to have received their degrees during commencement ceremonies Aug. 21 at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

The Romulus degree candidates included Jerry Koszondnar of Huron River Drive, bachelor of science; Danny Rob Price of South Inkster Road, master of regional planning; Dorothy Rush of King Road, master of arts; and Ronald Thomas of Stephanie Drive, master of arts.

The Belleville degree candidates were Mary Ann Bender of Lake

Point Boulevard, master of science; Archie Bice of Denton, bachelor of arts in education; Lynn Ernest of Village Green Drive, master of social work; Eleanor Grudzien of Roland, master of arts; Dennis Miller of Lake Point Boulevard, master of music; Gale Mitchell of Denton Road, doctor of philosophy; Mary Ann Salutz of Edge Dale Road, bachelor of arts; Barbara Van Sweden of I-94 Service Drive, master of arts; and Douglas Van Sweden of I-94 Service Drive, master of science in engineering.

In other school news:

Joseph Trump has been named to the Dean's List, after earning perfect marks during the spring quarter at Asbury College in Wilmore, Ky.

The Romulus student is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Trump.

Recent graduates from Wayne County Community College included Linda S. Coffee of Romulus, associate of arts degree; Stephen T. Wisniewski of Romulus, associate of arts degree; and Gary A. Drouillard of Romulus, associate of science degree.

Romulus student Michael Reeves of Wayne Road, has been attending the fourth session of the Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp located just north of Muskegon.

The bandsman is undergoing three hours of intensive daily rehearsals and sectionals, as well as taking technique classes and electives in recreational activities while at the camp.

Yul M. Butler of Gabriel and Michele Thomas of Avalon, both of Romulus, are currently taking part in an 11-day pre-term orientation seminar program at Alma College in Alma.

The optional program offers Alma new students an opportunity to enjoy a comparatively informal introduction to college life while participating in one of 13 small group seminars, designed to sharpen study, research, writing and speaking skills.

Butler is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel E. Butler, while Miss Thomas is the daughter of Mrs. Mabel Harris.

Gary Reid of Ecorse Road, Romulus, is a candidate for a master of arts at Michigan State University in East Lansing. He completed his studies at the conclusion of the summer term at the university.

Romulus residents to receive their college "sheep skins" in commencement ceremonies June 7 for Wayne State University were Charlie Allred of Oakdale Court, bachelor of science degree; Byung Joo Cho of Brownstown, master of science degree; Winston Fowler of Herman Road, master of science degree; Kenneth Newsome of Halecreek, bachelor of general studies degree; Danny Price of South Inkster Road, bachelor of science degree; Donald Ruby of Bordeaux, bachelor of arts degree; Larry Sims of Buck Street, bachelor of science degree; Eugene Tasky of Spain, bachelor of general studies degree; and Beverly Thorpe of Smith Road, master of social work degree; and Ronald Plocki of Castle Drive, bachelor of science degree.

ELVIS 'Secluded lifestyle made him happy'

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Staff Writer

"I think all the stories about wine, women and drugs are just not true. People want to believe this about Elvis and it's just not so. His quiet-type, secluded lifestyle was what made him happy.

"He liked to be alone with his friends—he was a down-to-earth country boy—and this is what made him happy. Very humble, in fact."

This is the description of Elvis Presley given by Dr. Frederick K. Lewerenz, a Detroit doctor who was the famous rock-and-roll singer's personal physician when he performed in Michigan and the midwestern United States.

A Belleville woman, Virginia Walker, who lives in Holiday Woods Mobile Home Park, Belleville, has worked nearly six years for Dr. Lewerenz and knows of her employer's great affection for Elvis.

"Dr. Lewerenz was very fond of Elvis Presley and considered him a close personal friend," said the medical technologist, who serves as office manager of the Lewerenz Clinic, 18819 W. McNichols.

She put the Associated Newspapers in touch with Dr. Lewerenz who fondly recalled his experiences with Elvis, who died last week of constriction of a main artery to the heart.

Dr. Lewerenz, 35, called Memphis at 9:30 a.m. on the day Presley died to talk with his personal friend, Dr. George Nichopoulos, who has been Elvis' personal physician for the past 10 years.

"I called Dr. Nick (as Lewerenz referred to him) at his office just to talk about Elvis' personal 10-day tour which was scheduled to start in Portland, Me.," recalled Dr. Lewerenz.

"He was unaware of anything being wrong at that time. Elvis was on medication for high blood pressure and on diet pills for his big appetite. He had a horrendous appetite. He really liked to eat—and got up to about 210 pounds when I was with him on tour in March when he performed at Olympia Stadium in Detroit, Saginaw, Toledo, Ann Arbor, Kalamazoo, Chicago, Milwaukee and Madison."

"He took medication for high blood pressure and diet pills for his big appetite—but I know he wasn't on drugs," he said. "He didn't smoke, or drink and didn't use drugs."

"At one time, Elvis had a large intestine problem which led to colon trouble. That gave him digestive problems, discomfort and pain. His colon disease caused him to kind of puff up and look a lot heavier in the stomach and face. The rest of his body didn't puff up."

"It took a lot of effort to put all out for an hour and a half performance."

Dr. Lewerenz explained that the cause of death was a sudden, cardiac irregularity—and the cause is unknown.

"We don't know what causes it, and if a person isn't attended to promptly, the victim usually dies."

The 42-year-old singer-actor was found dead face down on the bathroom floor of his Memphis mansion at 2:30 p.m. Aug. 16 by his road manager, Joe Esposito. A medical examiner said the singer might have been dead since 9 a.m. that day.

Presley reportedly had played racquetball at his private court of his Graceland Mansion until almost 6 a.m. on the day of his death.

Dr. Nichopoulos, Presley's personal physician in Memphis and on tour, said no evidence of any illegal drug use was present. The doctor confirmed that Presley had been taking a number of diet pills, but that the medication did not contribute to the singer's death.

Dr. Lewerenz met the famous rock-and-roll singer through Dr. Nichopoulos. "I met George playing racquetball in a tournament a few years ago," Dr. Lewerenz recalled. "I played on the national pro circuit for about two years and met him at a tournament in Memphis."

"When Elvis came to Silverdome Stadium in Pontiac for a performance New Year's Eve 1975, he developed some problems with laryngitis. Dr. Nick called me and I was able to help with medication. I met Elvis about 6 p.m. that evening and found him to be a very personable, very tender person who was considerate of other people."

Since that meeting, Dr. Lewerenz has co-participated in the care of Elvis while he was on tour, not only in Michigan but the entire midwestern United States.

Dr. Lewerenz, who just returned Sunday from a four-day trip to Memphis, is very upset by a book that's just been published by some of Presley's former personal bodyguards. In the book they say Elvis had a severe drug problem.

"They're doing it simply for the money—that's all!" Dr. Lewerenz responded angrily. "Some people want to believe this about him and it's just not true."

"Stories about him being obsessed with guns also is not true. He liked to be alone with his friends—he was a down-to-earth country boy. I found him very tender and considerate, even very humble."

"On tour he really cared about putting on a good performance for his fans. He didn't need the money—he cared about the people getting a quality performance. I was with him sometimes four days at a stretch and found him to be a real nice person and a good friend."

Dr. Lewerenz visited Presley's Graceland Mansion three times before his trip last week. "It is absolutely picturesque...out of a dream. He had a racquetball court, swimming pool, horses and stables, and cars—Cadillacs, Mark Fives and Fours and others. He really liked cars."

"There was a staff of personnel numbering about 15 that took care of the grounds and house."

Lewerenz, born and raised in Detroit, graduated in 1959 from Detroit Eastern High School, since renamed King. He attended Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine in Kirksville, Mo., and has had a general practice in Detroit the past five years.

Many people the world over heard of Elvis Presley, listened to his 48 million-seller "gold" records and flocked to see him on the silver screen, but few people got to know Elvis personally.

Dr. Fred Lewerenz was one of those fortunate few. "He was a gentleman and a dear friend. I'll miss him very much," he said.

Nominations open to Sept. 15 for Medal of Merit honor

Deadline for submitting nominations for the Congressional Medal of Merit for Outstanding Youth is Sept. 15.

Sponsored by Congressman William D. Ford (D-15th District), the award is designed to recognize outstanding young people whose activities and accomplishments sometimes go unnoticed or unrewarded. Last year's winners were selected for single meaningful acts as well as for a combination of activities.

Two awards are available in each of the 21 communities in the 15th

Congressional District. One is for boys and girls aged 14 through 18, or still seniors in high school, and the other is for high school graduates, or those in the 18-22 age bracket. The medals will be presented by Congressman Ford in the fall.

Nominations can be made by individuals or by organizations. Nomination forms are available from Congressman Ford's District Office, Post Office Building, Wayne, 48184 or by calling 722-1411. They also can be picked up from City or Township Clerk's offices in the 15th Congressional District. Many service, civic, and fraternal organizations also have nomination forms.

In setting up the criteria for judging the nominations, the citizens committee recommended that the accomplishments of these young people be either outstanding or meaningful; that they not be based primarily on scholarship, athletic ability or organizational membership, and that they not be something for which the nominee received financial payment. Recognizing that not all people are leaders, consideration will be given to nominees who have contributed time and effort to meaningful projects.

Heading the Citizens Committee will be Richard Palmer of Woodhaven and Bernadette Plunkett of Dearborn Heights.

Serving on the committee will be Adolph Jedryczka of Ash Township-Carleton, Stella Adams of Belleville, Nick Galovich of Brownstown Township-Flat Rock, Doug Ritter of Canton Township, Olen Wacaster of Dearborn Heights, Orin Mazzoni of Garden City, Frank Weiss of Gibraltar, Sophie Kucharczyk of Huron Township, Ernest Lyons of Inkster, Owen McCourt of Rockwood, Warren Jones of Romulus, Jim Morgan of Southgate, Girtha Folks of Sumpter Township, Beverly Runge of Taylor, Imogene Pense of Van Buren Township, Tom McKay of Wayne, Cathy Shivers of Westland-Livonia and Pat Cudejko of Woodhaven.

ALLEN KEY

Romulus veteran works for MESC

Allen Key of Romulus, who served in the U.S. Marine Corps, has been named to the position of disabled veteran outreach worker at the Michigan Employment Security Commission's (MESC) Job Service office in Taylor.

Key is a graduate of Madonna College in Livonia, where he majored in criminal justice. He was injured in combat in Vietnam.

Key is a bachelor who enjoys softball, fishing and, most of all, "Good times with friends."

In announcing the appointment of Key, S. Martin Taylor, director of MESC, said: "Thousands of disabled veterans have paid a high price for their service to America. They now deserve the opportunity to prove their worth on the job as they did in the service. We are endeavoring to give them that opportunity through the Disabled Veterans Outreach Program and will exhaust every resource to assist them."

The special program involves the hiring of 90 disabled veterans who will perform similar functions of recruitment and job placement assistance in 27 principle Michigan communities.

Special emphasis will be placed on Vietnam-era veterans, although all disabled veterans will be eligible for placement assistance.

In addition to Key, three more disabled veterans have been appointed to the Taylor Job Service office staff. The newly hired outreach workers are Samuel London Jr. and Ramon K. Martinez, both of Ecorse, and Michael J. Ptak of Trenton.

GO VACATION!

Hurrah!

The cheerleaders of North Junior High School in Belleville displayed some of their finest form during the Cheerleaders Spirit Conference held at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti. The conference, an annual affair at Eastern, is a 1-week competitive workshop open to all junior and senior high school cheerleading squads. The

Sportsman's Club selected as site of annual ox roast

For about six hours on Sept. 8 the population of sparsely settled Huron Township will nearly double in size as an estimated 7,000 men and their vehicles jam their way into the Wayne County Sportsman's Club Park.

The Wayne County Police Lieutenants, Sergeants and Corporals Association will stage its 16th annual Ox Roast.

Sgt. Harold Benson of Livonia, vice-president of the organization, said last year those attending waded through 4,400 lbs. of beef, 500 lbs. of hamburgers, 300 lbs. of kielbasa and a like number of hot dogs.

In addition they polished off an entire truck load of corn-on-the-cob and vats of clams - flown in by a charter plane from Boston - disappeared as if by magic.

To help wash down the food four trucks filled with kegs of beer and three soft-drink trucks saw their supplies exhausted by the time the affair ended.

Lt. Henry Kuharsky of Trenton, president of the police group, said the once-a-year event has become so popular that it is difficult to locate a park large enough to accommodate the crowds.

"Every year I am amazed at the turnout," Kuharsky said. "Where else will you see businessmen, political figures, judges, cops, lawyers and just ordinary working men having the time of their lives, eating and drinking as much as they please?"

The annual event - which is strictly a stag affair - is the major fund-raising activity for the police group. Proceeds are used for charitable endeavors, sponsored by the organization.

Explaining the traditional no-women policy Kuharsky said: "We are not a male chauvinist outfit, in fact we have women police officers in our ranks. But we can never find a park big enough with facilities to handle the needs of 7,000 men, let alone members of the opposite sex."

The police group was organized in 1960 when command officers realized there was a need for the mutual exchange of ideas and discussions of problems. All of the members are working police officers - there are no honorary members - and they come from every department in the county, the Michigan State Police and the Wayne County Sheriff's Office.

Tickets, which sell for $10, can be purchased from any police officer or at the gate on Inkster Road, near Pennsylvania Road.

WHEN THE AAA OFFICES ARE CLOSED, THE TRAVEL INFORMATION CENTER IS STILL OPEN

When a AAA member wants travel services and the local offices are closed, the Travel Information Center (T.I.C.) is still open. With just a phone call, AAA members can get:

- Triptiks, maps and Tourbooks (mailed to you)
- Hotel-motel reservations in the U.S. and Canada
- Answers on traffic, road conditions and detours
- Tips on where the fish are biting
- News about Michigan festivals and events
- Information on license plates, hunting and fishing licenses and campsite availabilities

AAA members can find the Travel Information Center phone numbers including the statewide toll-free number on their membership card. T.I.C. serves members from 6 a.m. to midnight, Monday through Saturday... from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday... and 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Sundays during holiday weekends.

Also serving round-the-clock are more than 500 Emergency Road Service contract garages throughout Michigan. Just a phone call and membership card brings AAA to your rescue with pre-paid emergency road service.

And this Labor Day weekend, listen for AAA Holiday News Service reports with information on traffic jams, where campgrounds and motels are available, where fish are biting, etc.

Rep. Mahalak says

Legislature 'gets tough' with criminals

A Bail Denial Law and other measures recently approved by the House and Senate reflect the legislature's "get tough" policy towards criminals, according to State Rep. Edward Mahalak (D-38th District).

The newly signed law tightly restricts the right of bail for persons who are awaiting sentencing or have their convictions under appeal after having been convicted of a violent assaultive crime, Mahalak said.

There will be automatic denial of bail unless the trial judge finds by clear and convincing evidence that the defendant would be no threat to others, if freed on bail and, in the case of an appeal, if the appeal raises an important question of law or fact which might lead to a reversal of the conviction.

The law does require that there be a speedy hearing on an appeal if the defendant is denied bail, Mahalak said.

The law applies to those convicted of assaultive crimes, which include murder, manslaughter, kidnapping, rape, robbery, felonious or aggravated assault intentional maiming or disfiguring and assault with intent to do great bodily harm, rape, rob or maim.

"This new law should substantially reduce the chance that a person convicted of a violent crime will commit another crime while out on bail during appeal, by requiring that there must be positive and persuasive evidence that he or she is not dangerous," he added. "A person who had already shown a capacity for violence should be required to meet this standard before being freed from bail.

"The requirement that an appeal raise a substantial question of law or fact should reduce the number of frivolous appeals that are filed only to gain the convicted felon's release on bail."

The legislation was supported by the attorney general, the State Police, the State Bar of Michigan, the Michigan Sheriffs Association and the Legislative Committee of the Michigan District Judges Association.

The House also approved and sent to the Senate a series of bills which would crack down hard on heroin dealers, Mahalak said.

The legislation would establish tough mandatory sentences for anyone convicted of dealing in more than 50 grams of illegal narcotics. The sentences range from either 10 to 20 years in prison or probation for life for from 50 to 225 grams to 20 to 30 years for 225 to 650 grams and life imprisonment for more than 650 grams.

The prison sentences could not be suspended and could not run concurrently with a sentence for another felony. Once sentenced to prison, there could be no parole, probation or time off for good behavior, he said.

"The penalties imposed by these bills for major drug dealing are severe, but they are not inappropriate in terms of the harm that drug dealers do to society, particularly in the area of drug-related crime," Mahalak said.

The same package of bills would allow police to use court-authorized wiretapping to obtain evidence against suspected major narcotics operations. The police agency would have to apply for the wiretap warrant through the office of the attorney general, and it would have to be approved by a 3-judge panel of the State Court of Appeals.

The applications for wiretap warrants would have to establish a probable cause to believe that drug offenses are or are about to be committed, described in detail the place where the wiretap would take place, and tell how long the wiretapping would continue.

Another bill sent to the senate would toughen up the concealed weapons law.

The bill would set minimum mandatory sentences for illegally carrying a concealed weapon, Mahalak said. A first offense would carry a minimum penalty of a fine of $1,000 and as much as $200 in costs, provided the defendant had no previous felony conviction record. A second offense would require a minimum of one year imprisonment.

The bill also would extend the concealed weapons law to include firearms that are over 30 inches in length, which are not presently covered. This would bring sawed-off shotguns which are being used by criminals, under the law.

Another bill, under Senate consideration after House approval, sets harsh penalties for persons convicted of using minors for pornography or prostitution. Currently, the only crime for which an adult using children for such purposes can be prosecuted in Michigan is depraving the morals of a minor, which is a misdemeanor, he said.

The bill would make it a felony to use minors or cause them to be used for pornography or prostitution, punishable by as much as 20 years in prison. There would be a penalty of as much as seven years imprisonment for distributing child pornography, according to the state representative.

A related bill, also sent to the senate, would set a penalty of as much as one year imprisonment and/or a fine of as much as $10,000 for employing a minor for pornographic purposes.

The House acted quickly after the Michigan Supreme Court threw out, for technical reasons, a law which prohibits prison inmates from having weapons.

The House approved a bill which reinstates that law, covering the court's objections to the previous law. The bill is under Senate consideration.

The Supreme Court decision, which involved a Southern Michigan Prison inmate charged with possession of a weapon, resulted in a situation under which a prisoner cannot presently be prosecuted for possessing a weapon in prison.

County hospital extends privilege to private doctors

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners has endorsed a medical service plan that would grant qualified private physicians full staff privileges at Wayne County General Hospital in Westland.

The board's endorsement of a resolution, introduced by Commissioner Royce E. Smith, helps pave the way for increased use of the general hospital which would bring in additional needed revenues.

The resolution directs the Board of County Institutions — which is the hospital governing body — and the hospital administration and medical staff to implement this open door policy as soon as possible. It was approved by the full Board of Commissioners Aug. 18.

"I am delighted with the board's action," Smith (D-26th District) said. "I introduced the resolution in June out of concern for the hospital's financial difficulties and because I felt one of the finest hospitals in the nation was being under-utilized.

"It was obvious to me that unless new policies were adopted to allow greater community use of the hospital, it would continue to lose money and be forced to close."

Smith said the "first step already has been taken in allowing private doctors full staff privileges."

"The Obstetrics and Gynecology Department has just taken on five excellent community doctors who will now be able to make use of some of the most sophisticated equipment in the nation," Smith explained.

Smith said private physicians interested in joining the department should contact Dr. John R. Gosling, director of the department.

Smith emphasized he is very optimistic about the future of the general hospital now — both from a financial viewpoint and in its ability to better service the community.

Nancy Dickerson, prominent national correspondent, reports for Detroit Edison:

"See how homes winning Detroit Edison EEE Awards are built to save on energy costs from top to bottom."

Detroit Edison is a concerned participant in America's crusade for conservation. The wise use of energy is a national goal, but it requires a working relationship between those who supply energy and those who use it. To demonstrate publicly the desire to take a leadership role in this crusade, Detroit Edison has established the Energy Efficiency Excellence (EEE) Award to encourage the building of more energy-efficient homes.

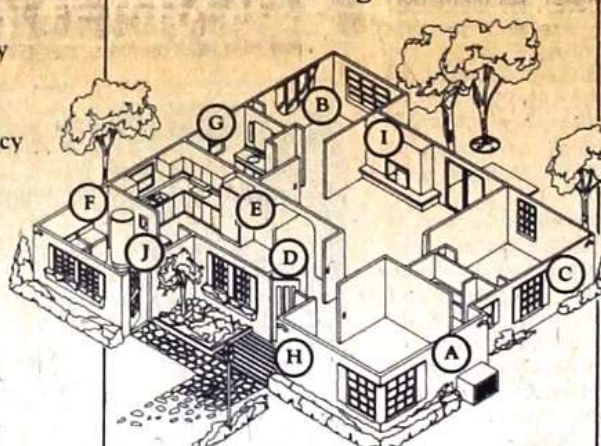

EEE Award homes are designed with conservation in mind.

Detroit Edison presents the Energy Efficiency Excellence (EEE) Award to builders whose homes meet maximum standards in insulation, lighting, wiring, appliances and are comfort-conditioned with an energy-efficient electric heat pump.

From attic to basement, EEE Award homes are designed to keep your heat inside during winter and your utility costs down. These same features also make EEE Award homes easier to cool in summer. The heat pump that keeps EEE Award homes comfortable all year round is an efficient way to heat, cool, filter and dehumidify electrically.

If you're planning on buying or building a new home, take a look at the Detroit Edison EEE Award homes. These homes will help you conserve energy and keep your operating costs at rock bottom.

Detroit Edison EEE Award homes must meet or surpass the following standards:

A. Energy-efficient heat-pump heating and cooling system which conforms to design and installation standards established by the electric utility industry.

B. Maximum insulation including R-17 material in exterior walls, R-44 in attic, and fully insulated basement walls with an R-13 value.

C. Windows with wood sash and insulating glass or single glass with full storm. Or aluminum sash with thermal break and insulating glass or single glass with full storm.

D. Exterior doors with foam core and magnetic seal.

E. Refrigerator and freezer must be energy-efficient if provided by builder.

F. Water heater is energy-saving type, located as close as practical to point of use. Hot water lines wrapped in insulation are recommended.

G. Interior lighting that conforms to the Illuminating Engineering Society standards for energy efficiency in residential lighting.

H. Exterior security lighting, if provided, has automatic dusk-to-dawn control.

I. If home has a fireplace, it must have a tight-fitting damper and glass screen, and if practical, an outside fresh-air supply.

J. Materials, equipment, design and construction of all electric devices and wiring must comply with all local and national codes.

If you're interested in finding out more about energy-efficient living, call these builders. They'll be happy to give you more details about the benefits you enjoy in EEE Award homes.

Yes, you can make your present home more energy efficient.

Detroit Edison's Home Insulation Finance Plan is designed to help you bring your present home up to today's energy-saving standards. Ask about it at your Detroit Edison Customer Office. Here are other things you can do to help conserve energy and also save money: Put up storm windows and doors; Check weatherstripping and caulking; Dial down in winter and dial up in summer; Lower furnace fan settings; Keep electric appliances in good repair. That way, we'll all be using energy more wisely.

Pick up a free copy of "Planning a New Home?" at any Detroit Edison Customer Office. Or call Detroit Edison for more information.

PURAC meets with FCC

By JANICE PLESIEWICZ
Nightbird KNN 5032

I recently met with Steve Gorelick (Pup Dog) who is a member of PURAC. (Personal Use Radio Advisory Committee). The objective of this group is to furnish advice and recommendations on potential means of alleviating interference and enforcement problems currently being experienced in the Personal Radio Service. The above was taken directly from one of their reports.

The fields, or task areas, discussed were:

- (1) Local interference problems;
- (2) Electromagnetic compatibility;
- (3) User rule compliance;
- (4) Operator training programs;
- (5) Disseminating information;
- (6) Technical standards;
- (7) Part 95 readability;
- (8) Public safety uses of personal radio;
- (9) Personal use radio communications needs;
- (10) Equipment theft; and
- (11) General mobile radio service.

This is what I could find out about what is happening in Washington with the Federal Communications Commission.

In January of this year Mr. Gorelick became a member of PURAC and decided to attend the 3-day meeting to discuss the 11-task areas mentioned above. The people involved in this group are from different parts of the country. Many of these people are very involved in REACT as is Mr. Gorelick.

In April of this year Mr. Gorelick and another representative attended the meeting held in Washington. The meetings were held for three consecutive days. On the first day of discussions there was nothing related to PURAC, but were related to various REACT teams across the area. Representatives were present from Chicago, Dallas and the Washington metropolitan area.

On the second day Mr. Gorelick appeared at the FCC Headquarters in Washington, D.C., from approximately 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. that evening. The first task area discussed was user rule compliance. Mr. Gorelick said "the whole purpose behind the task area is to have the people who use the radios in the personal radio service comply with the rules, so that they don't interfere with other people, cause television interference and so that their radio is available for everyone to use."

A 3-hour discussion was then held on how to help people comply with the rules that now exist. No final conclusions were reached, but further meetings are scheduled in the future.

The next task area discussed was part 95 readability. Involved in this area was the FCC and P. Randall Knowles, Task Coordinator who had re-written Part 95 of the FCC Rules and Regulations. These rules and regulations are not yet prepared for publication. Mr. Gorelick said: "What we have done with Part 95 is re-write it into basic English. We have taken out the legalities and have simplified the rules so that you can understand them and so that if you understand them you will follow them." One and a half days were spent tearing apart Part 95 and making it as simple to read and understand as possible. I was told by Mr. Gorelick that the revised version must now be re-read by the Law and Enforcement Division of The Federal Communications Commission to make certain that in the simplification there were no loopholes left in that would enfringe upon their enforcement.

The next task area discussed was safety uses of personal radio. The task coordinator was Nathan L. Maryn of Potomac, Md. The purpose of this task area is designed to help public safety officers to utilize Citizens Band Radio. As I was told not much was accomplished in this area.

"About the only thing we accomplished is a recommendation to the FCC that they set aside the call letters starting with K and following up with the state's postal initials and the four digits 0911, which will be recommended across the entire country." Anyone already possessing these digits presently will be asked to relinquish these call signs.

Another recommendation made was that the FCC hold back on issuing any further 0911 call numbers, so that they may all be reserved for public agencies.

When asked as to whether it was true that Citizen Band Radio would be moved to a higher frequency, Mr. Gorelick said: "We had an off-the-record discussion with one of the senior FCC representatives (and this is off the record). He indicated to us that there are no plans at present or in the near future to change the Citizen Band or Personal Use Radio frequencies and that they will not be expanding the number of channels. They will not be reserving any channels for any particular use except for Channel 9 which will maintain its emergency use."

"He said that sometime in the future, perhaps five or six years down the line, there may be a move to go the 250- or 220- band and perhaps even up to the 400-band." At the present time Class A Citizen Band Radio is up in the 460 band range. There are no plans for general usage there. For the present time Citizen Band Radio will stay in the frequency it is now.

Mr. Gorelick said: "Hopefully if we can get people to comply with the rules that exist, maybe even practice a little courtesy on the air, we will all be able to operate in the 40 channels we have been allotted."

COMMENT: This writer has seen the revised copy of Part 95 of the FCC Rules and Regulations and may say to the people involved in the re-writing, a job well done. This is something that has been needed for a long time and hopefully this revised edition will be published. If it is there will be no excuse for anyone to say that they read the rules and regulations, but didn't understand them.

One other topic I discussed with Mr. Gorelick was linears. I asked him what were the chances of being caught by the FCC, if you have a linear in your possession. Here is what I was told.

"The chances of getting caught are getting better and better and the prosecutions are getting more and more stringent, people are going to jail, and they are getting $10,000 fines."

I would like to thank Mr. Gorelick for taking the time for this interview. I found it to be very interesting as I'm sure all of you had. Once again, thank you Pup Dog for your time and co-operation.

We haven't heard from you readers as much as we would like to. Let's get those Bic pens a'pumpin and write to: Nightbird, c/o Associated Newspapers Inc.; 35540 Michigan Avenue, Wayne 48184.

Avoid misunderstandings

There's more to an apartment than rent

By LINDA JOY
Executive Director
Michigan Consumers Council

Renting an apartment house is more complicated than simply selecting a place, paying the rent on time and expecting full satisfaction from the landlord. Much misunderstanding and frustration can be avoided, however, if tenants understand and exercise both their rights and responsibilities.

Before searching for an apartment or house, figure out your finances and set an absolute limit on what you will spend for housing. To prevent temptation, don't even look at places renting for more than that amount. Remember to include all the extra expenses such as parking, maintenance work, water, garbage, electricity and heat which may not be covered by the regular rent.

If utilities are extra, ask the utility company for past records of utility bills and be prepared for higher utility bills due to increasing energy costs. When utilities are included in the rent, see if there are thermostats to regulate the heat or the place may be freezing in winter. If you are a low-energy consumer, you also may want to check the energy habits of the other tenants. Otherwise, your rent may reflect the other tenants' use of electricity.

It's the tenant's responsibility also to look closely at an apartment or house before deciding to rent it.

Consider the sound-conditioned construction of the place. Generally, the more solid the walls, the quieter the unit will be. Try out the range, refrigerator, dishwasher, exhaust fan and garbage disposal to see how well they work. Look around for storage space and electrical outlets in each room. Check the bathroom drains, toilet, shower and tub to see if they are in good working condition. You may also want to turn on two hot water faucets to see if you can get hot water in both places at the same time.

Understanding the lease is another responsibility of the tenant. A lease may be either a written document or an oral agreement between a tenant and the landlord outlining the conditions mutually acceptable for the rental place. Both are legally binding, but a written lease may give you more security if a problem arises with the landlord.

Regardless of the type of lease, make sure all of its conditions are acceptable before agreeing to it. Don't be afraid to ask the landlord to strike objectionable terms or add provisions which you would like.

When you move in, the landlord must provide an inventory checklist which must be returned within seven days. Check each item on the list carefully and note other things which are damaged or need repair. You should also thoroughly sweep the carpet to discover any cigarette burns which may have been hidden by glued-on carpet fuzz. If there are several damaged items, ask to see the checklist the former tenants gave the landlord.

While living in the unit you have the responsibility to pay the rent on time and to keep the place in a safe and sanitary condition. When repairs are needed, notify the landlord immediately since waiting may increase the damage and cost. Except for normal wear and tear, you should return the rental unit to the landlord in the same condition as when you moved in.

When moving out, you are required to provide the landlord with a forwarding address within four days and should return the keys. The landlord must then return the security deposit or a portion of it with a letter explaining the deductions within 30 days. If you disagree with the deductions, tell the landlord within seven days and demand what you believe is correct. The landlord must then return the difference or sue for damages.

Remember the security deposit is your money until you agree to give it up or an award is granted by a court.

The latest legislative protection for tenants is the evictions law. This law protects against unfair evictions by prohibiting landlords from shutting off utilities, changing locks or harassing a tenant with noises, odors or other nuisances. If a landlord uses any of these illegal tactics, a tenant can sue for a minimum $200 damages plus reasonable attorneys' fees.

'Keep on trucking'

County vows tight budget to borrow $27 million

Wayne County's Board of Commissioners has pledged to "take such steps as are necessary" to limit rising costs which have forced the county to seek to borrow $27 million to meet operating expenses for the balance of this year.

Board Chairman John Barr of Dearborn Heights announced he would present a detailed "fiscal recovery plan" within a few days.

The resolution pledging to contain costs was adopted unanimously by the county legislators at an Aug. 18 board meeting. Barr sponsored the resolution.

The commissioners underscored their resolve to clamp down hard on spending by holding up a long list of department requests pending receipt of Barr's plan for dealing with the financial crisis.

The promise of "stringent" economies was adopted as a prerequisite to getting approval from the Michigan Municipal Finance Commission for issuance of $27 million in tax anticipation notes.

Borrowing through the tax notes was recommended by the County Board of Auditors to meet payroll and other expenses for the balance of the fiscal year, ending Nov. 30. The loans will be repaid from tax receipts which come in shortly after the first of the year.

The county also anticipated a budget deficit of about $12 million this year.

In its resolution, the Board of Commissioners vowed "stringent" budgetary controls this year and next, "including curtailment of services as necessary to bring the fiscal situation into balance." The board pledged that the budget deficit will be eliminated in next year's budget.

If they don't have shots

Kindergartners may miss school this year

Kindergarten children entering school in out-Wayne County this September will be excluded from school unless parents can provide proof that the children have received their required childhood disease immunizations.

Dr. Perry Stearns, county public health director, explained that parents will have eight weeks after school starts to either begin the required immunization series or complete a series already started. Dr. Stearns also announced that Health Department Immunization Clinics have expanded their schedules in order to accommodate the parents of the new school children.

Dr. Perry Stearns, county public health director, explained that parents will have eight weeks after school starts to either begin the required immunization series or complete a series already started. Dr. Stearns also announced that Health Department Immunization Clinics have expanded their schedules in order to accommodate the parents of the new school children.

The mandatory exclusion policy is based on a state law which has been in effect since 1955. A parent, who for religious reasons elects not to have their child immunized, must go to the child's school to sign an immunization waiver. Outcounty school district officials have agreed to abide by the health department exclusion order. Local school districts have been working cooperatively with health department personnel for the past two months in preparation for the September school enrollee program.

The Health Department plan requires that kindergartners not immunized by Nov. 7 be excluded from school. Since all childhood immunizations cannot be given at the same time, children who have started their immunization series by the first exclusion date will be allowed to stay in school, but will be excluded on Feb. 1, 1978 if their school records show no attempt has been made to continue or complete the required series of shots.

Some school districts, however, have elected to exclude children on the first day of school or at intervals earlier than Health Department guidelines.

Dr. Stearns indicated that the Health Department's "get tough" policy is essential because outbreaks of measles and other communicable diseases are highest among 5- and 6-year old children than for any other age group in Wayne County. He also noted that an alarming trend both nationally and in Wayne County shows immunization levels among children steadily declining.

Safeguarding the health of our children, keeping them in school and saving their parents costly medical bills is what the school enterer program is all about, concluded Dr. Stearns.

Immunization clinics will be held:

- In Wayne and Westland at the Wayne County Health Department located on Merriman Road of Michigan Avenue 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3:30 p.m. weekdays and from 4 to 7 p.m. every Wednesday Sept. 7 through Sept. 28.

- In Taylor at the South Health Center, 21201 Eureka Road, from 9 to 11 a.m., 1 to 4 p.m. and 5 to 7:30 p.m. every Thursday Sept. 6 through Sept. 27.
- In Livonia at St. Paul Presbyterian Church, 27475 Five Mile at Arcola, 9 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m. Sept. 7.
- In Rockwood at the Rockwood Congregational Church, 22600

Mather East of Huron River Drive, 9 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m. Sept. 14.

- In Northville at the Northwest Clinic, 16000 Sheldon road north of Five Mile, 8:30 to 11 a.m. and 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. Sept. 28.

Any child attending the clinic must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian. The accompanying parent must sign a consent form at the time of immunization and should bring an up-to-date shot record to the clinic.

For further information call 729-2211 or 274-2800 between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays.

Riegle rejects gas guzzler tax

U.S. Sen. Donald W. Riegle Jr. (D-Michigan) has rejected the proposed gas guzzler and standby gas taxes as "discriminatory measures which place the burden of conservation on one segment of society", and urged his colleagues to refuse to increase the price of gasoline.

"The President told Congress April 20 that fairness would be the guiding principle throughout the development of the energy plan, stating that 'none of our people must make an unfair sacrifice'. It is this very same philosophy which is behind my opposition to the proposed gas guzzler and standby gasoline taxes," Sen. Riegle said in a letter to Senate Finance Committee Chairman Russell Long.

The two gasoline tax proposals, Riegle said, place the burden of the cost of conservation on "those very people in our society who can least afford it," and that their impact "will fall unevenly on certain individuals and industries".

He added: "For example, the effect of the gas guzzler tax could very well deny large cars to the families who most need them. Families with children often do not have an option on the size car they buy, and they will be unable to respond to the incentive of a rebate or excise tax. The penalty-rebate system could thus become a regressive tax. People who need station wagons because of family size should not be penalized for it. They do not buy large cars as luxury, but out of need."

The cost of larger cars will be increased by the penalty, gas guzzler tax, Riegle said, "encouraging present owners of large cars to hold onto their cars longer than they normally would, instead of trading them in for smaller, fuel-efficient models".

For youth employment

Teens to help set job program policy

Job programs for youth under the Wayne County Office of Manpower and its Advisory Planning Council will for the first time soon have young people themselves serving officially to help establish policy.

Eight youngsters are being considered for the Youth Subcommittee of the planning council which recommends on programs and expenditure of funds for youth employment, training and education.

Dr. Jeannette Drew, chairman of the subcommittee, said youth representation in these decisions is required under pending federal legislation for youth programs, funded by the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

This year the Manpower Office is administering $31 million in CETA funds, with more than 10 percent of that applied to youth programs.

The youths helping to guide these programs in the future will be selected by the Advisory Planning Council at its next meeting in September. The council consists of two county commissioners and 15 other representatives from government, business, labor, education and community groups who advise the Manpower Office.

After their names were solicited from various public agencies and social service organizations, the eight youths were invited to an advisory council meeting, Aug. 22, to learn about committee objectives and consider if they wanted to participate.

Those under consideration are Gary Martin and Farid Zarif, from the House of Pi in Detroit; Joan Broses, Taylor Youth Services; Theresa Jackson and Georgia Brown, Detroit Job Corps; Kevin Kales, from the Growth Works organization in Plymouth; and Rodney Ross and Tracey Watson, Highland Park Youth Services.

Dr. Drew said the youths, all under age 21, will attend a board or committee meeting each month and will serve without pay, if selected.

"I am pleased and impressed with their keen observation," said Dr. Drew, "and I expect their contributions to be invaluable in these programs. 'I think their involvement is an important new arrangement, and I believe a lot will be learned because of their presence.'"

"Even at the orientation meeting they were expressing concern about training programs for skills that they think are obsolete in the community," Dr. Drew pointed out.

Some in the group have prior history with community-based work experience programs and say they are against training programs that do not also help the trainee gain union membership, Dr. Drew observed.

Others in the group said at the meeting that they feel youth can perform a special role in the job market by preparing for interim employment that is ignored by skilled adults.

As examples, they cited small appliance and doorbell repairs that electricians are likely to avoid.

Several agreed at the meeting that they also would like to see young workers in more human service jobs, such as working with other youth or the aged, as contrasted with industrial or commercial employment.

Dr. Drew is director of the County Office of Youth Services. The office itself is not a source of funds for youth services, but offers program advice and technical assistance to other agencies that are eligible for grants and other funds.

Food stamp users get new cards

Food stamp recipients have received a new kind of card that might cause some confusion, according to welfare department officials.

The card, known as an "Authorization to Purchase Food Stamps" (ATP), identifies the recipient and shows them how much they have to pay to get a certain amount of food stamps. In order for the person to get the stamps, they must take their ATP card to a food stamp sales center to be redeemed.

But here's where the problem starts.

The new card people will get in the mail really isn't a card. Welfare department officials describe it as a form that can be read by a computer, a card that should not be folded, torn or soiled. Officials are afraid that recipients might fold the card up or put it in their wallet or purse like their old ATP cards before going to the food stamp sales office.

Another problem is that recipients are not supposed to sign the new card until they present it to the food stamp sales cashier. Recipients used to be required to sign the ATP card before bringing it to the sales centers.

Welfare officials are reminding recipients that they will get a notice explaining the new food stamp procedure with their new ATP forms. If clients buy their stamps twice a month, they will receive their ATP form on the 1st and 15th of that month. If they buy the stamps just once a month, they will get the ATP form on the first of the month.

Department officials said the reason they were using the new form was because the volume of food stamp recipients had increased so much in the last couple of years a computer was needed to process all the paperwork.

For more information, Food Stamp recipients should call the Food Stamp Hotline at 256-3103.

Class lineup posted

Twenty-four courses to prepare persons for careers in child care, dietetic assistant work or in gerontology are scheduled by Wayne State University's Department of Family and Consumer Resources through the College of Lifelong Learning for the fall quarter. There are innumerable career opportunities in these fields.

Starting Sept. 29, the courses will be given in Detroit on the main campus; in Birmingham at the Birmingham Center for Continuing Education; in Garden City at the Harrison Center of Schoolcraft College; in Grosse Pointe Farms at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial; in St. Clair Shores at Ottawa Junior High School; and in Southfield at the WSU Southfield Center.

Most of the classes are scheduled in the late afternoon, evenings or on Saturdays.

You need not be admitted to Wayne State University in order to register for any of the courses.

For course, counseling or registration information, telephone 577-3312.

Blood donors sought

Red Cross is asking residents of Wayne county to help meet the continual need for blood in their county by becoming volunteer blood donors this fall.

If you are between the ages of 17 (with parental consent) and 65 and in good health, you probably are eligible to donate blood. Visit the Dearborn Donor Center in the Village Plaza at 23400 Michigan Avenue, Dearborn, or call 274-5450 to make an appointment.

Blood donations are accepted at the center on Monday, Tuesday and Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Wednesday and Thursday from 2 to 8 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

MARY ANN BANKS

CANDIDATE FOR CITY COUNCIL

Dear Citizens of Romulus,

I am an independent candidate for city council. As a life long resident I have a deep rooted interest in Romulus and have always taken pride in my community.

While campaigning for this election I have met and talked to many very fine people. It is apparent they are as concerned as I am about the problems we face. I would like to be part of creating a positive image for Romulus. I would be proud to serve as a council member representing all the people of our city.

With the interest and support of the people, Romulus will continue to grow. Please vote September 12, 1977.

Sincerely,

Mary Ann Banks

American housewives: What's their status?

The American housewife: Does her job have the status it deserves? Definitely not, but there is hope for change in the foreseeable future.

That's the opinion of one outspoken activist in the controversial field of "housewives' rights." Susan Brown, a founder and officer of Housewives NOW.

Besides her leadership role in the branch of the National Organization of Women (NOW) that's working for housewives' rights, Brown also is a member of the Kentucky Fried Chicken "Time Out Institute." The Institute was created to examine the changing role of the housewife in American society from a wide variety of viewpoints and perspectives.

According to Brown, the question of housewives' status has many implications — economic, legal, sociological and psychological.

"There are a number of specific injustices that affect housewives which are being recognized today, public discussion and awareness of the homemaker's problems are beginning to evolve," Brown said. "Hopefully this 'public airing' will lead to resolving some of her problems and help further the legal and economic equality of the housewife."

In the economic area, major issues under discussion that would improve the housewife's status — in her own eyes, those of her spouse and those of society — include wages for housewives, Social Security reform and credit reform.

"One of the major reasons that housewives suffer from generally low status is the fact they work without pay," the NOW activist said. "They have little economic status or security of their own."

Some families have informal systems of wage payments for housewives, Brown admits, she notes this can help only on an individual basis.

"Even if a payment agreement between husband and wife is formalized, written down and notarized, it is not enforceable in a court of law. And it does not enable the housewife to qualify for typical worker's benefits such as workman's compensation, unemployment insurance or Social Security."

Brown points out that only a wage earner can benefit from the Social Security system and that a housewife is eligible for dependent's benefits only if she's been married a minimum of 20 years. So, if a couple are divorced after 19 years or less of marriage, the wife never will receive Social Security benefits unless she herself has held a job outside the home.

There is hope in sight for the legal resolution of this aspect of the homemaker's dilemma, Brown noted. She cited the Fraser-Keys Bill which is designed to give the maximum number of adults their own Social Security wage records on which to collect benefits. These records would be adjusted annually to credit each spouse with the higher of either 50 percent of the couple's combined earnings or 75 percent of the highest salary either makes. Partners may marry, be widowed, divorce or remarry without losing benefits.

The same principle of dividing the "accrued benefits" from the marriage partnership currently does legally apply to housewives' establishment of their own individual credit records.

"Any homemaker who, after years of marriage, has found herself 'husbandless' — either through death of a spouse or divorce — is also faced with the loss of her credit rating," she explained. "She soon finds that establishing her own is extremely difficult."

Brown strongly advocates that housewives take all the necessary steps to insure development of personal credit ratings. She suggests they:

- Apply for credit cards in their own names at stores they frequent;
- Start savings accounts in their names at local banks; and,

- Write companies in which they and their husbands have joint accounts and formally request separate credit files in both names.

"Although the laws are changing to help the housewife obtain her own credit history, it still is a difficult task."

While progress is being made in some areas of homemakers' rights, others are facing setbacks, Brown says. She believes that passage of the Equal Rights Amendment would benefit housewives more than any other segment of the population.

'There are a number of ... injustices ... which are being recognized today ...'

"It would give housewives greater equality in the areas of economic security, property rights, child support and widow's benefits than she has ever had before," she explained.

Discussing the psychological aspects of the housewife's status is the most difficult area of all, Brown believes.

"There is a prevailing attitude that housewives are not as productive or interesting as employed women. There's no sense arguing that many of a housewife's chores — such as making beds, doing laundry, etc. — require tremendous intelligence. However, money management and child guidance — two of the key aspects of her job — do require both talent and brains. It's time that we paid respect and money to those who conquer this career."

She admits that several of the suggested reforms elicit backlash from many homemakers — "some housewives are comfortable with their roles and the interpretation of laws affecting them."

But Brown adds that the status problem really becomes relevant for homemakers when they find themselves out of their 24-hour-a-day, 7-days-a-week job of wife, mother and household manager. In fact, statistics show this eventually happens to a great majority of all housewives — through the death of a husband, divorce or the growing up of children.

"Most housewives are not prepared for the adjustments and when they find themselves 'unemployed', the injustices they previously felt did not affect them personally really cause them personal and economic difficulties," she said. "Homemakers who, often by necessity, find themselves looking for an outside job, are confronted by often-unexpected and very major problems."

"Their chances to find adequate employment are slim due to their years out of the job market. Add to this the lack of quality, affordable child care and the limited amount of counseling available to housewives returning to work and the problem multiplies."

"As the needs of women change, must the role of the housewife. Even if that means training for a new career."

And what about Ms. Brown's "career?"

"As a housewife — and mother of three young children — I want my career to reflect my goals," she explained. "Our family is dedicated to togetherness and, within reason, we share household tasks, recreation and ourselves."

Girl Scouts' recruitment drive grows

Growing enrollment has forced the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council to expand its annual recruitment drive and to offer a new service to local businesses, according to its president, Frances Bauer of Plymouth.

The organization, which now serves nearly 18,000 girls each year, is assisted by more than 2,500 adult volunteers. The increase has totaled more than 1,000 members this past year. The council provides the Girl Scout program in Washtenaw, Livingston, western Wayne and northern Monroe counties.

"People are beginning to recognize that Girl Scouts provides experiences in leadership and organization that few girls can get elsewhere," Mrs. Bauer said. "We've been working at developing happy, resourceful, responsible adults since 1912, and today it's more important than ever!"

The local recruitment drive is aimed at men and women of all ages and interests, as well as former Girl Scouts, people attracted by the organizations opportunities for professional experience and free training in interpersonal, management skills and group leadership.

New to this year is an approach to area businesses. The Council is offering to bring Girl Scout volunteer spokesmen to lunch hour gatherings of interested employees. The volunteers will not make formal speeches but will be able to answer questions about the satisfactions of the fun of being a Girl Scout volunteer.

"Some working people are bored with watching television every night. They would like to do something to make their community a better place in which to raise children. They just haven't realized that Girl Scouts is a great way to enliven their lives and enrich those of others," Mrs. Bauer said.

She pointed out, however, that not all potential volunteers become troop leaders. Each is interviewed by a local troop services director who attempt to match a person's interest with the right volunteer job. A particular person may make a better teacher of adults than a troop leader and enjoy it more.

There are openings for more than 70 troop leaders throughout the council and as many assistant leaders. (The full compliment is 625.) In addition, volunteer management teaching and writing positions are available.

Persons wishing to arrange for a employee-meeting or to learn more about opportunities in Girl Scouting may call the Huron Valley Council office at 488-2370.

Give of yourself The Girl Scouts need you

Giving is an American tradition—not just the out-pouring of material things, but the giving of oneself. Nowhere is the spirit of giving better exemplified than in the volunteer service adults donate to youth organizations, such as the Girl Scouts.

There is hardly anyone who isn't aware of the value of Girl Scouting for young people. For the past 65 years, it has served as a growing-up experience of fun and learning for generations of girls.

What people don't realize is that volunteers so often get far more than they give. They make new friends, perform community service, form long-lasting attachments with some of their troop members, get outdoors and, above all, have a great time themselves.

Moreover, they don't realize that meetings with Girl Scout troops now are scheduled at all times of the day, not just immediately after school, so that working people are not excluded.

Finally, as a volunteer leader or assistant in Girl Scouting, you can be sure that your abilities will be used and appreciated. And, you will receive the kind of training that will develop your skills in human relations and other areas.

We strongly urge young adults, male and female; singles; married couples; senior citizens; and former Girl Scouts to join those who already know the job of sharing.

Get in touch with the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council at 483-2370, or any council near you and find out how you can become a part of an important way of life in our community.

Ery-Brown exchange vows in Aug. 13 rite

An altar decorated with vases of carnations, gladiolas and palms set the stage for the Aug. 13 nuptial rite of Carol M. Ery and Daniel J. Brown.

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Ery of Muschbach Road, Grass Lake, Mich., wore a princess style, floor-length gown of bridal crepe for the candlelight service. Accented with full sleeves, a detachable train and a high neckline, the gown was trimmed with matching lace and seed pearls, held her elbow-length illusion silk veil and completed the bridal attire, created by the bride's mother.

Escorted into church by her parents, the bride carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations, yellow roses buds, baby's breath and ivy. Officiating at the ceremony at the First United Methodist Church of Chelsea was The Rev. Marvin H. McCallum.

The bride asked her sister, Nancy, to act as her maid of honor for the double-ring rite. She wore a sleeveless princess style gown of yellow crepe, with a yellow print polyester crepe cape, trimmed with white lace. A yellow picture hat with a matching ribbon bow and a nosegay of daisies and baby's breath completed her outfit.

Bridesmaid for the ceremony were Lois Brown, sister of the groom, of Grass Lake, while the junior bridesmaid was Regina Purczynski of Melbourne, Fla., cousin of the bride. Their gowns were like that of the honor attendant, with Miss Brown's gown in a lilac shade, and Miss Purczynski's in pink.

The three attendants' gowns also were made by the mother of the bride.

The groom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Brown of Winters Road, Grass Lake, asked his brother, Leon, to serve as his best man. The groomsmen were Ken Dysinger of Chelsea, friend of the groom, with Norman Brown of Grass Lake, brother of the groom, serving as the junior groomsmen. The ushers were Paul Brown of Saline, brother of the groom, and Mario Trevino of Munnith, brother-in-law of the bride.

The bride's mother chose a floor-length gown of ice blue crepe, with long, full lace sleeves and white accessories, for the evening ceremony. Her corsage was of pink-tipped carnations.

The groom's mother wore a floor-length green print gown with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

MR. AND MRS. DANIEL J. BROWN
... Carol M. Ery

Debra Trevino of Munnith — assisted with the serving at the reception. The wedding cake was cut and served by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Donald Curtiss of Tecumseh.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of Chelsea High School. Her husband is a 1976 graduate of that same school and currently is employed by Federal Screw Works in Chelsea.

Tkachuks gather for family reunion

The Clark Lake area of the Irish Hills was the site of the Aug. 21 reunion of the Tkachuks.

Forty-four members came from Manistee, Belleville, Romulus, Kalamazoo, Westland, Adrian, Britton and Texas for the get-together. Ball games, frisbee, horseshoes and Jarts were among the games played, despite some raindrops.

Rennie Agnew of Belleville serves as captain of a pontoon boat and out rides to those at the reunion. Singled out for special recognition was the eldest member attending, 72-year-old Thurber Stull of Romulus, the father of Joyce Tkachuk of Romulus.

At the other end of the scale, the youngest attending were twins Katy and Peggy Wielfaert, age 18 months, the daughters of Dan and Judy Wielfaert of Adrian. They are the granddaughters of Albert and Helen Wielfaert of Britton.

Better late than never "Better late than never" might be the motto of lime lovers, because the Florida lime crop is almost three months late this year. Despite the delay, consumers can look forward to a plentiful, reasonably priced fresh lime crop next month. And for a great low-cal drink or dessert try mixing ice tea, unflavored gelatin and lime juice for lime tea ice. It really beats the heat and quenches a thirst.

Nothing like a lime to cool that thirst

There is nothing quite so refreshing on a hot day as an ice-cold summer drink made with Florida limes. Luscious tropical fruits are well known for their natural, refreshing qualities. And limes from Florida, juicy and bursting with flavor, really help beat the heat of summer. An endless list of cool summer beverages is possible with versatile Florida limes. Limeade is one of the popular favorites. Or, try a lime blender drink by combining lime juice with cream and other fresh fruits. A splash of lime juice also gives new life to traditional summer beverages like iced tea and soft drinks. Lime juice is an especially nice enhancer to diet soft drinks, giving them an extra zip.

Lime Tea Ice is a summer treat that will bring back memories of childhood snow cones and slushes. This refreshing cooler or dessert combines the marvelous thirst-quenching qualities of tea with the superb flavor of fresh Florida limes. The result is a tempting, icy snack that's a delicious low-calorie alternative to ice cream and sherbet. Attractive to serve and easy to prepare, Lime Tea Ice is a sensational addition to summer fun.

LIME TEA ICE

- 6 tea bags
- 3 cups boiling water
- 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
- 1/4 cup cold water
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 6 to 8 Florida limes

Steep tea in boiling water for 5 minutes. Meanwhile, soften gelatin in cold water. Remove tea bags. Stir softened gelatin and sugar into hot tea, until dissolved. Grate 1 lime; then juice enough limes to make 1 cup juice. Stir grated peel and juice into tea mixture. Pour into ice cube trays or shallow pan. Freeze until slushy; then put in mixing bowl and beat smooth. Refreeze until firm. Serve in dessert cups, garnished with wedges of lime.

Lodge hosts lunch

A group of officers and members of Lodge No. 132 of the Degree of Honor meet recently at the Tin Lizzy Restaurant to celebrate the 1977 birthdays.

Among those celebrating was National Director Eva McMullin, organizer of Lodge 132. Gifts were exchanged among those present.

Mrs. McMullin also presented a report of the convention held this month in Seattle, Washington.

At that convention, Frances Dick was introduced as city deputy for selling the most insurance in Lodge 132.

Hazel Miller, a past president of the Lodge, also attended.

To establish contacts

Agencies sponsor sharing workshop

Ten western Wayne County agencies are co-sponsoring a resource sharing workshop Sept. 15 at the YWCA of Western Wayne County.

The workshop, which invites agencies in nine communities —

Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Garden City, Inkster, Livonia, Romulus, Taylor, Wayne and Westland — is scheduled from 9 a.m. to 12 noon in the "Y", located at 26279 Michigan Avenue.

Sponsors of the workshop say its purpose is to let agency representatives establish agency contacts, learn about community programs, publicize services and identify program needs by participating in informal discussions and a 90-minute workshop, focusing on one of four general topics. Workshop participants can select one of the four, which are Children and Youth Services, Elderly Services, Family Services and Mental Health Services.

A gamut of subjects, which includes runaways, foster care, transportation, recreation and delinquency, will be discussed in the Children and Youth Services workshop. Persons participating in the Elderly Services workshop will discuss similar problems relating to employment, nutrition, transportation, recreation and financial assistance.

The Family Service workshop concerns itself with topics as housing, emergency services, death and bereavement, displaced homemakers, counseling and vocational assistance.

Participants in the Mental Health Services workshop will discuss services concerning crisis intervention, psychiatric services, mental retardation recreation.

The workshops are designed so participants can become aware of existing services and view potential for expanding services.

To register for the workshop, contact the YWCA at 26279 Michigan, Inkster, or at 561-4110.

Sponsoring agencies and their representatives, which organized the workshop, are Barbara Naragon, United Community Services; Mike Jarzombek, Communities United for Action (CUFA); Barbara Bergman Counterpoint; John Lankford and Dwight Eads, Dearborn Heights Parks and Recreation; Lucille Cantoni, Family Service of Detroit and Wayne County; Neil Thomas, Family and Neighborhood Services; Terry Kristy, Garden City Treatment Center; John Robert, Livonia Office of Volunteer Energies (L.O.V.E.) and Helen Parks, City of Westland, and Melinda Finger, YWCA.

Zaleskis celebrate 50th year with special Mass and reception Anniversary Mass at St. Aloysius Church of Romulus began the day for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Zaleski of Romulus in recognition of their golden wedding jubilee.

Married on Aug. 20, 1927 at St. Stephen's Catholic Church in New Boston, the Zaleskis live on Hannan Road in Romulus.

Fr. John Buchner and Fr. John Budde officiated the 2 p.m. Mass, which was followed by a reception for 200 friends and relatives at the PNA Hall in Belleville. The reception was given by their children, Helen Walter of Romulus and Loretta DeMino of Pontiac.

Active in the PNA Lodge, Romulus Progressive Club and the St. Aloysius Ushers Club, Zaleski is a retiree of the General Motors Corp. He worked for the automaker for 40 years. Mrs. Zaleski at one time was employed by the Romulus Department Store.

The Zaleskis have two grandchildren — Ken DeMino and John Zaleski.

Special guest at the anniversary party were attendants Helen Barwinski of Detroit, Helen Wik of Detroit, Josephine Phillips of Garden City, Vancy Adamczyk of Westland, Sally Janczyk of Romulus and Bernard Zaleski of Allen Park. Also attending was Mrs. Zaleski's niece, Stella Choczynski, who was visiting from Poland.

The Zaleskis marked their golden jubilee with a 4-tiered wedding cake, made and decorated by Mrs. Bernard Zaleski, Mr. and Mrs. Zaleski's sister-in-law.

Music for the reception was by Ted Leonard of Wyandotte.

The Zaleskis received many gifts and good wishes from those attending the party.

Eighteen members of the Degree of Honor No. 132 recently visited the State Escort, Dorothy Crook, at Bell River, Ont., Canada.

Also at Mrs. Crook's home were National Committeewoman on Audit Maybelle Ensminger and her husband, Phil, National Director Eva McMullin and State Director Betty AuBuchon and her husband, Roland.

A breakfast for the visitors were served in Mrs. Crook's yard, and then guests were given tours of her and her mother's homes.

A highlight of the trip was Mrs. Crook's husband, Castle, picking apples from the roof of their home for each of the visitors.

The group then motored to Norma Betty's Restaurant for lunch and toured Bell River and walked along St. Clair Lake.

And a surprise birthday for "Granny Cant" was observed. It was her 82nd birthday.

Vincent Price captures wit of Oscar Wilde

Vincent Price will appear at Detroit's Music Hall Center for one week, beginning Sept. 13, on the first stop of his national tour in "Divisions and Delights," the critically-acclaimed portrayal of Oscar Wilde, the irascible wit and playwright.

This new play is the opening attraction of the Music Hall's 1977-78 season, a year that will bring more than 30 attractions in drama, ballet, musicals, modern dance, pop and jazz concerts, mime and children's shows to the Center's stage.

Price, a celebrated wit and raconteur in his own right, slips easily into the role of the notorious 19th century cynic. Wilde was an author, playwright and social critic whose colorful and liberal ideas made him adored or scorned by Victorian society. Dramatist John Gay has created a sensitive portrayal of the man who wrote, among other classics, "The Importance of Being Earnest" and "The Picture of Dorian Gray."

At times, the 1-liners come so fast and thick, the audience can almost envision Wilde as a stand-up comic. ("Nothing succeeds like excess," and "Morality is the attitude we adopt about people we dislike.") and failures, his imprisonment and his controversial moral standards.

The play is set in a Parisian concert hall in 1899, a year before Wilde's death. It is an American Conservatory Theater production directed by Joseph Hardy.

Evening performances at the Music Hall are scheduled for 8:30 p.m. Sept. 13 through Sept. 17. A 6:30 p.m. curtain is set for Sept. 18 and 2 p.m. matinee will be performed Sept. 15 afternoon.

Tickets can be purchased at the Music Hall box office, 350 Madison at Brush, from 12 until 6 p.m., Monday through Saturday. Tickets can be ordered by telephone by calling 963-7680 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

To celebrate the Center's grand opening, a reception will be held in the lobby following the opening night performance only. Called, "A Wilde Party," the informal festivity will feature light hors d'oeuvres and a cash bar. Open to the public, those who wish to attend should send their name and address and a check made payable to Music Hall Association to a "A Wilde Party," c/o Music Hall Association, 350 Madison Avenue, Detroit 48226. Cost is $6 per person, and party passes can be picked up in the lobby on opening night.

'Regina' opens Michigan Opera Theatre season

Joan Diener Marre, known throughout the world for her creation and subsequent 5-year success as Aldonza in "Man of La Mancha," will make her American operatic debut in the coveted title role of Michigan Opera Theatre's (MOT) new production of Blitstein's "Regina," which opens the 1977-78 season of opera in English at Music Hall.

An accomplished pianist, dancer, and actress, Miss Diener Marre made her Broadway debut at 17 as Dalilah in the original cast of "Kismet," and most recently performed in the United States as Penelope in the national tour of "Odyssey" with Yul Brynner.

Her European operatic debut in the title role of Puccini's "La Fanciulla del West" (Trieste) was highly acclaimed, with famed Puccini scholar Mario Morini comparing her performance to the great Magda Olivero. Subsequent European performances include the title role in two productions of "Tosca," and Leonora ("Il Trovatore") in East Berlin. Following "Regina," Miss Diener Marre returns to East Berlin for the title role in "Salome," directed by Otto Schenk.

"The role of Regina is extremely demanding, both musically and dramatically," said MOT General

Director David DiChiera, "and we are very fortunate to have an artist who not only is a great opera talent, but who also is a consummate actress."

MOT's production of "Regina" also will feature the return of Ronald Holgate as Benjamin Hubbard. A Tony Award winner for his role in "1776," Holgate made his MOT debut as Scarpia in "Tosca," and he will perform Escamillo in MOT's upcoming "Carmen."

Soprano Barbara Hoher and baritone Wayne Turnage will perform Birdie and Oscar Hubbard. Stage director Francis Rizzo (MOT's "Boris Godunov" and "La Boheme") returns for "Regina," and the production marks the professional conducting debut of John Yaffe.

Brenda Booser, MOT's delightful Rosina of two seasons ago, returns for the title role in Bizet's "Carmen," alternating with Chilean mezzo-soprano Victoria Vergara of the New York City Opera. Micaela will be performed by Broadway's Treemonisha, Carmen Balthrop, who recently made her Metropolitan Opera debut.

Sigmund Romberg's "The Student Prince" will star MOT's own Charles Roe, now a leading artist with the New York City Opera, who has performed in every MOT season since 1971.

MOT's final production of the 1977-78 season, Gounod's "Faust," will feature the return of Leona Mitchell as Marguerite. MOT's Bess of two seasons ago "Porgy and Bess," Miss Mitchell recently made her Metropolitan Opera debut, and took top honors as Micaela when the Met toured Detroit in 1976. The title role will be performed by Metropolitan Opera tenor Jon Garrison, and Henk Smit, the leading bass-baritone of the Netherlands Opera, will perform Mephistopheles. This new production will be directed by David Alden and designed by Paul Steinberg, both of whom collaborated on MOT's 1976 production of "Lucia di Lammermoor," starring Catherine Malfitano.

In announcing the leading artists for the upcoming season, MOT General Director David DiChiera said that "1977-78 marks our first venture into the French repertoire, and we are pleased to be presenting two of the most popular and undisputed giants of French opera.

"We also, for the third year in a row, will open our season with an American opera." "Washington Square" and "Porgy and Bess" opened the 1976 and 1975 seasons, respectively. "It reflects this company's commitment to present the best of America's creative output," he added.

Charles Dickens comes to life

Charles Dickens, the sensitive, 19th century English novelist, spun many of his most popular yarns around events that occurred in his own life.

"Dickens of London," a new, 10-part series, is a dramatic account of those events. It leads off the 1977-78 "Masterpiece Theatre" season on Channel 56, Sept. 4, when the first two parts air back-to-back from 9 to 11 p.m.

This biographical drama introduces Dickens as a boy (Simon Bell), in the early 1800s, a stage in his life which provides the groundwork for unforgettable Dickensian characters and his powerful attacks of London's Poor Laws and the oppressive conditions in the boarding schools of the day.

As a young man (Gene Foad), Dickens' energy and love of life are expressed in his penchants for the theater and his dreams of becoming a journalist. He is emotionally scarred by his first passionate love, who rejects him. Soon, however, he meets and marries Kate (Adrienne Burgess). Together they raise 10 children.

In the third and final stage portrayed, Dickens (Roy Dotrice) becomes an experienced journalist and in modern vernacular, "a best-selling author." "Dickens of London" is the first on the 1977-78 "Masterpiece Theatre" roster of fine dramas. Also scheduled to run in coming months are dramatizations of: Robert Graves' "I, Claudius"; Tolstoy's "Anna Karenina"; Dickens' "Our Mutual Friend"; Poldark II — a sequel to "Poldark" which concluded Aug. 28 — and "The Duchess of Duke Street".

Big Mac trek is Monday

The 20th Annual Labor Day Mackinac Bridge Walk is scheduled for Monday, starting at 7:30 a.m. — the only time persons are permitted to walk across the bridge.

Gov. William G. Milliken, an 8-year veteran of the annual trek across the bridge, is expected to lead some 30,000 fellow Michiganders and outstayers in "the world's greatest walking event."

Preceding the general bridge walk there will be novice walking races conducted by the International Walkers Association, which sponsored the first bridge walk in 1958. These races start at 7:15 a.m.

Trophies will be awarded to four classifications — men and women, boys and girls. Registration is necessary to participate in this event. Persons interested may sign up at the fare plaza (north side) prior to the start of the races. Registration fee is 50 cents.

Bridge walkers are urged to make their own arrangements for arriving at the starting line, the fare plaza. Buses from Mackinaw City will be available, but past experiences indicate that the long lines of persons waiting for passage may result in as much as a 2-hour delay. The fare is 50 cents.

Bridge officials also emphasize that there are no relief stations on the fare plaza or on the bridge and that bridge walkers should take this into consideration prior to starting the 1-to 2-hour trek.

Mom: Here's what I forgot to tell you

By MAUREEN BEATTY

Dear Mom,

Today I once again made a reluctant trip to the airport to say good-bye. You probably wondered why I became unusually quiet, as we drove to the North Terminal to check you in, and why I had little to say as we sipped coffee, awaiting for your departure time.

I was thinking about just that. Why I become silent when you are leaving, (and since I'm not unique, many other daughters and sons just like me) instead of expressing aloud what your visit has meant.

How often I fail to tell you how much you are appreciated. When my friends and I arrived at your apartment five short weeks ago, I kissed you hello, but did I tell you how good you looked after not seeing you for a year? I expressed my disappointment at Tara Mar, but did I thank you for making reservations there? For although the hotel did not look the same through my adult eyes as it did years ago through my child eyes, staying there was still a dream come true. When I grumbled about the long drive back to Michigan, did I tell you that I marveled at the fact you never once complained about being tired?

I tease you for not offering to cook while you are here, but did I tell you that I hate to do dishes more than anything else, so your insistence on taking over the cleanup detail after every meal was the best offer you could have made? We joked about your slowness in climbing in and out of the van, but did I tell you how proud I am that you get around so well for a woman your age, always keeping up with me wherever we went? (Maybe walking just a little slower?)

We laughed about your innocent, old fashioned ideas about life, but did I tell you I wish I could see things as you see them? That the world would be a better place for me? I scold you for worrying so much about me, but did I tell you that I secretly enjoy it, for who doesn't want to feel loved? And I tease you for holding steadfast to your religious beliefs in an era when the church itself seems to be floundering, but did I tell you that I envy your faith?

How many sons and daughters fail to express their thoughts, leaving it to chance that their parents might know? And yet when I say "I love you," your answer is always "I know you do".

I return from each trip to the airport depressed. I hate good-byes, yet once again they have been forced upon me. But my depression does not last long, for I soon realize that if there were to be no good-byes in my life, there could be no joyful reunions. I'm smiling now, for I know how really lucky I am that we have had one more summer together. And I am looking forward to your next visit. Take care Mom.

Love,
Maureen

During September

Time to wrap up garden chores

As the days get shorter and the kids go back to school, the emphasis in the garden is on wrapping up the season and preparing for winter. Extension specialists at Michigan State University suggest the following garden activities are timely in September:

— Before Sept. 15, sow grass seed on a seedbed prepared last month.

— Kill broadleaved weeds in established lawns.

— Spot-seed bare spots in your lawn with similar grass species. Loosen the soil surface before seeding, and firm it afterward. Water daily — more than once, if necessary — until seedlings are firmly established.

— water established lawns once a week during dry periods. New lawns need daily light watering until the new grass plants are well established.

— Plant peony, iris, day lily, phlox and other spring or summer blooming perennials.

— Bring in houseplants and potted azaleas before the first frost. Check them carefully for insects, and treat problems as necessary. Place azaleas in a cool, partially shaded spot. Be prepared for some leaf drop, as plants that spent the summer outdoors adjust to lower light levels.

— Keep picking the dead or fading blossoms from annual flowers.

— Dig and pot geraniums, coleus, begonias, fuchsia and lantana from the garden. Cut them back to half their size and treat for insect pests before taking them indoors for the winter.

— Dig and pot geraniums, coleus, begonias, fuchsia and lantana from the garden. Cut them back to half their size and treat for insect pests before taking them indoors for the winter.

— Dig gladiolus corms. Allow them to dry, and remove the foliage. Store them for the winter in perforated bags so air can circulate around them. A cool, dry storage place is best.

— After the first killing frost, dig tender bulbs like dahlias, cannas and tuberous begonias. Cut off dead foliage, leaving a short stub, and store the bulbs in a cool, dry place in moist sand or peat moss. Check them occasionally and discard any that show signs of mold, disease or insect damage.

— Order bulbs for forcing and spring flowering bulbs for outdoor planting in November.

— Harvest strawflowers for winter arranging when they are about half open.

— Around Sept. 1, begin giving your Christmas cactus 12 hours of complete darkness and night temperatures below 70 degrees to induce it to flower around the holidays.

— Beginning Sept. 20, to about Dec. 1, keep poinsettia plants in total darkness from 5 p.m. to 8 a.m. every day to force them into bloom by Christmas.

— Keep spraying roses for insect and disease control.

— Do not fertilize roses, trees, shrubs and other ornamentals now. This would stimulate new growth that would be very susceptible to winter injury.

— Prune dead, diseased or damaged limbs from trees.

— Plant ground covers, evergreens, trees and shrubs. Water thoroughly and mulch after planting.

— During dry periods, water trees and shrubs, especially evergreens and newly planted stock, thoroughly once a week until the ground freezes so they will go into winter with adequate moisture.

— Continue to weed the vegetable garden to keep weeds from going to seed.

— Minimize fruit disease and insect problems next year by cleaning up fallen leaves, twigs and fruits and disposing of them.

— Continue disease and insect control programs for vegetables and fruits.

— Let pumpkins and squash get thoroughly ripe before you harvest them.

— Extend your gardening season by protecting vegetable crops against the first frost or two. You may get as much as an extra month of production.

— Prune old fruiting canes and diseased canes from raspberry plants. Canes that produced fruit this year will not bear again and may harbor disease organisms or insects.

— Store leftover flower and vegetable seeds in tightly sealed jars in a cool, dark, dry place.

— Harvest herbs for drying. Dig parsley, chives and other herbs out of the garden and pot to grow indoors during the winter.

— After the final garden harvest, plow up the soil and plant a cover crop of rye to plow under in the spring. This will add nutrients and organic matter to the soil.

— As leaves fall, chop or grind them and put them on the compost pile. Chopped finely and mixed with soil and fertilizer, they will decompose and provide you with a good supply of leafmold to improve garden soil.

— Dispose of leftover dabs of pesticides and empty pesticides and empty containers safely. Store large amounts of leftover pesticides in air-tight containers in a dark, dry storage place that can be securely locked.

— Watch for elm leaf beetles invading homes in search of overwintering shelter. A malathion spray around doors and wall cracks may help control them.

New York City tour gives overview of 'Big Apple'

The proof of the popularity of Associated Newspaper's annual trip to New York City is the number of persons who sign up for the tour.

In addition to many of the "regulars," a number of first-time visitors to the nation's largest city join the group. Their reason for joining the group, most explain, is to get an overview of what New York has to offer before making any future "solo" trips there.

The Associated trip is a busy one with bus tours and visits to the United Nations Building, Rockefeller Center, the Empire State Building and numerous other attractions. Tour participants see a Broadway show and meals at some of New York's fine restaurants also highlight the trip.

Cost of the tour is $220 per person, double occupancy. The price includes air fare, hotel accommodations, meals, tips, baggage handling and admissions. The cost of one luncheon is not included in the package price.

Persons who wish to make reservations for the Oct. 28 - 30 trip can call ANP Travel Director Gene Wertz at 729-4000.

For additional information on the tours, ask your friends, relatives or neighbors who have taken such tour, chances are that they are planning to sign up for the trip and will be pleased to have you join them on ANP's annual New York City visit.

Get rid of it!

Dangers are considerable in transporting school students

Even though school buses have proven to be a reliable and safe method of travel, the traffic safety dangers involved in transporting one million students 125 million miles this school year in Michigan are considerable, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Since school-aged children are unpredictable and impulsive, it is important that motorists be extra alert, especially for the 160,000 students starting kindergarten this September," said Arthur C. Gibson, Auto Club's safety and traffic engineering manager. "About 40 percent of the state's 2.5 million students in grades kindergarten through 12 ride buses to class."

Gibson urged motorists, including school bus drivers, to drive cautiously and reduce their speed in school areas.

Through its "School's Open—Drive Carefully" campaign, now in its 31st year, Auto Club promotes the importance of traffic safety to motorists, parents and students during the school year.

"It is essential that those three groups take the necessary safety steps to help Michigan cut down on traffic deaths and injuries involving school-aged children," Gibson stated.

In the 1976-77 school year, five youngsters lost their lives in bus-related accidents, an increase of two deaths over the previous year.

Another 72 school-aged pedestrians — aged 5 to 14 years — were killed last year—many of them while walking to and from school.

"Many of these deaths occurred because students were unaware of the danger of crossing streets to and from school and because motorists were inattentive or driving too fast for conditions," Gibson explained.

Auto Club warned that rear-end collisions occur too frequently because drivers realize too late that vehicles in front of them have stopped for school buses.

"The presence of a school bus should be a warning to motorists that traffic may come to a stop and they should be prepared to take similar action," Gibson said.

The Auto Club suggests that parents teach children these simple rules for riding the bus or walking to school:

- Walk only on the sidewalk. If there is none, walk facing traffic on the shoulder of the road.
- Watch for turning cars and never cross between parked vehicles.
- Leave home in plenty of time to arrive at the bus stop and stay well off the roadway while waiting to be picked up.
- Remain seated while the bus is moving and keep hands and arms inside at all times.
- After leaving the bus, walk at least 10 steps ahead of it before crossing the road, waiting for the driver to signal it is safe. Never cross at the back of the bus.

Motorists are reminded to be extra cautious when seeing a bus in the distance since children running to catch it sometimes forget to look before crossing roadways. Drivers also should stop at least 10 feet in front or in back of a bus when it is picking up or dropping off children on any road without barriers or dividers between lanes. That is a state law.

SASAC takes stand of heroin clinics

The Wayne County Substance Abuse Services Advisory Council (SASAC) has made a position statement on the potential community problems that could arise as a result of heroin being made available in clinics.

SASAC membership consists of 12 appointees, made by the mayor of Detroit, and 12 appointees, made by the chairman of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

The group in the position statement on heroin maintenance said it would not change criminal behavior, reiterated its opposition to the use of methadone to maintain addicts and that heroin clinics would create centers for congregation of addicts in neighborhoods surrounding the clinics.

In its statement, the council said: "...There is wide belief that heroin addicted persons are responsible for the majority of urban crime. But there have been sufficient studies to indicate that this is unsupported by facts."

"Secondly, there is a myth that heroin addiction is a character disorder, which occurs because of a dependent, immature, manipulative, hostile personality.

"There is again sufficient evidence to understand that many persons become addicted as a kind of life-style or career because of a lack of stimulating education and meaningful employment. Addiction provides meaning to the life of the addicted person, even if it is apparently a negative meaning."

The council went on to say that "the problem of heroin addiction poses an opportunity for other persons who wish to make a business or career of managing 'deviants' for the rest of society."

The panel has come out opposing a heroin maintenance program, as put forth in a legislative proposal, citing: "We believe that the connection between heroin addiction and crime has not been shown to be conclusive. Heroin by itself does not create personality changes which could result in criminal acts."

"Although some crime is committed by addicts to support their habits, such crime generally is against property rather than persons, others acts of crime are a result of adaptive behavior to the environment.

"Crime is committed by addicts and non-addicts. The provision of free heroin is legally sanctioned settings will not change criminal behavior which has evolved as a part of our contemporary social order."

The SASAC also said it believes heroin addiction can be treated and that addicted persons should not be maintained or kept on any addictive drug for life.

"The Substance Abuse Services Advisory Council opposed the use of methadone to maintain or keep addicted persons dependent on a drug except when absolutely necessary or medically indicated. We certainly oppose the use of heroin for this purpose."

The council position statement also indicated that the council feels that the administrative problems of such a program would far more complicated than those involved with methadone maintenance, raising such questions as who would be eligible for heroin maintenance.

It went on to say such a setup would require addicts to receive four to five shots per day and questioned whether the staff could deliver quality service under conditions of manpower shortage and problems associated with the larger number of client visits.

The position statement also indicated that council foresees a congregating of addicts in the neighborhoods surrounding heroin maintenance clinics, all too-often located in working-class poor, black, hispanic, whites and other low income class neighborhoods.

The council also feels that since the methadone maintenance program has created a large number of methadone addicts, heroin maintenance will invoke similar results. It cited the British experience in heroin maintenance, saying that "the heroin addicted population has not decreased rather, it attracted more non-addicts as well as recreational users into heroin treatment."

"There are multiple ways to treat and rehabilitate heroin addicts," the position statement stated. "There are chemicals to relieve symptoms, there are non-addictive drugs to help addicts to withdraw from heroin, there is counseling and there are therapeutic communities.

"Society will do well to enhance supportive services in providing therapy, counseling, job training and placement services to addicts so they may become drug-free and return to the mainstream of a productive labor force."

Murder mystery to air

A 4-hour 1930s murder mystery is slated to run Sunday night beginning at 9 p.m. on Channel 56.

"Five Red Herrings" is a sophisticated "whodunnit" based on one of the 14 Lord Peter Wimsey adventures written by English authoress Dorothy Sayers. Lord Peter Wimsey fans will remember the mystery was originally spaced over four weeks when it premiered on public TV's "Masterpiece Theatre." It can now be savored in one enjoyable evening.

Legend has it that authoress Sayers became so angry with an artist friend that she wanted to murder him. She took the advice of another friend and did just that—but on paper. Then she gave Lord Peter, her own super sleuth creation, the task of sifting "five red herrings" out of six suspects to find the one true villain.

The victim and the suspects are all members of an artists' community nestled in the picturesque Galloway Hills of Scotland. (Nearly all of the drama was produced on location and the 1930s decor is faithfully recreated both inside and out, replete with vintage automobiles.)

Sayers' artists are unforgettable, sometimes eccentric characters, but the monocled Lord Peter holds his own in any contest. British actor Ian Carmichael portrays Lord Peter and of the character he says: "We have a lot of attributes in common—except money. And class...But both Lord Peter and I love good food, good wine, good music, good wit. And cricket, of course."

Drivers needed

The Red Cross is recruiting volunteer drivers to work one day per week at Veterans Administration Hospital in Allen Park from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday transporting patients to recreational events, the airport and shopping centers.

"It does these patients a world of good to have the opportunity to see a 'Tigers' game or to shop at their favorite store. For some, this transportation is the only means they have for leaving the hospital," said William Bucieski, manager of the Red Cross West Regional Office.

Volunteer drivers must hold a valid Michigan drivers License, have a good driving record and be at least 18 years of age. Red Cross will provide the vehicle.

Persons interested in giving some of their time to the patients can call the Red Cross Office of Volunteers at 833-4440, ext. 340.

Great Lakes 8 is in trouble

Taylor schools nix football for 1977 campaign

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

The Great Lakes 8 Conference is in trouble. After Taylor residents failed to pass a millage that would keep, among other things, varsity sports "alive," the conference lost its two affiliates in that city — Taylor Truman and Taylor Center. The league could unofficially become the Great Lakes 5 this year if Wyandotte voters also turn thumbs down on a millage levy. Wyandotte residents were to vote Monday on the school proposition. "We have picked up two teams — Southgate and Portage Northern — to replace the two dates that would have been filled by the Taylor schools," said Floyd Carter, head coach at Wayne Memorial.

collapsed as injuries took their toll. The Zebras had to be satisfied with an over-all 5-4 record.

With the defection of a crop of blue chip Taylor gridders to Lincoln Park, Carter sees the defending champs "as the team to beat in the league."

"A lot of the Taylor football players have transferred to Lincoln Park and it's going to be rough trying to beat them this year," he said.

Wayne will utilize the Wishbone Offense this season in hopes of getting more mileage out of its offense and Mark Korte, who lettered as a sophomore, has been assigned the responsibility of running it.

"However, we don't have anyone lined up to fill in for Wyandotte if they should eliminate athletics in that city." Wayne will officially launch the season on Sept. 9 when they travel to Belleville for their nonleague opener. The last two contests between the Zebras and Pat Stokes' Tigers have been "barnburners" with Wayne edging their rivals. "We are not going to have the size we have had in the past," Carter announced. "The one asset we will have, though, is very good team speed." Wayne ripped off five straight victories last year, then suddenly

The Sports Meridian

When did Iraq join Iran, sir?

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

There definitely is a difference between Iran, whose capital is Tehran, and Iraq, whose capital is Baghdad. And, as a reader points out in today's letter, The Sports Meridian deserves an "F" for failure in politics, geography and Asia Minor history.

Here is that letter:

DEAR MR. MOORADIAN,

Though I enjoyed your column of August 24, 1977, which appeared in the Belleville Enterprise labelled "Iran's strange sights" and, though I'm very happy that you are giving the Winekoff brothers recognition they so rightly have earned, there appeared geographic and politic errors in that column that must be corrected so that our young students and others know the difference between the two countries.

In that column you wrote: "The Belleville High sophomore (Rick Winekoff) was one of a group of teenage wrestlers...who recently completed a successful tour of Iran, the first Americans to be invited to the ancient land of the Iraqi for nearly two decades..."

Dear Tom, we have so many Americans in Iran that it could easily become the 51st state if it weren't for the Shah (just kidding).

But the Shah of Iran and the United States have been on amicable terms for decades — we need their oil and they need our protection from the Communists. We have sold them everything from helicopters to needles and our engineers have swarmed over that oil-rich country.

Needless to say I have visited that country and must agree with the young wrestlers — the food is difficult to stomach.

On the other hand, Iraq, which is a natural enemy of the Iranians, have allied themselves up with the Soviet Union and have scores of students in the U.S.S.R.

Iran and Iraq just don't get along. They're comparable to the Arabs and the Jews; the Irish Protestants and Catholics; and well, let's leave it at that.

Again, let me say I am one of your faithful readers, but you definitely get an "F" in geography.

Sincerely,
John Davidson, Belleville

Dear Mr. Davidson,

You're right...I did flunk geography in school.

But, on a more serious note, I just can't track down the hows and whys Team Michigan wound up in Tehran instead of Baghdad.

When the initial call to raise money to send the local wrestlers to Iraq was made, I did a story and it was IRAQ that invited them. However, then the political intervention, the Iraqi apparently chickened out and that left Team Michigan in a bind, to say the least.

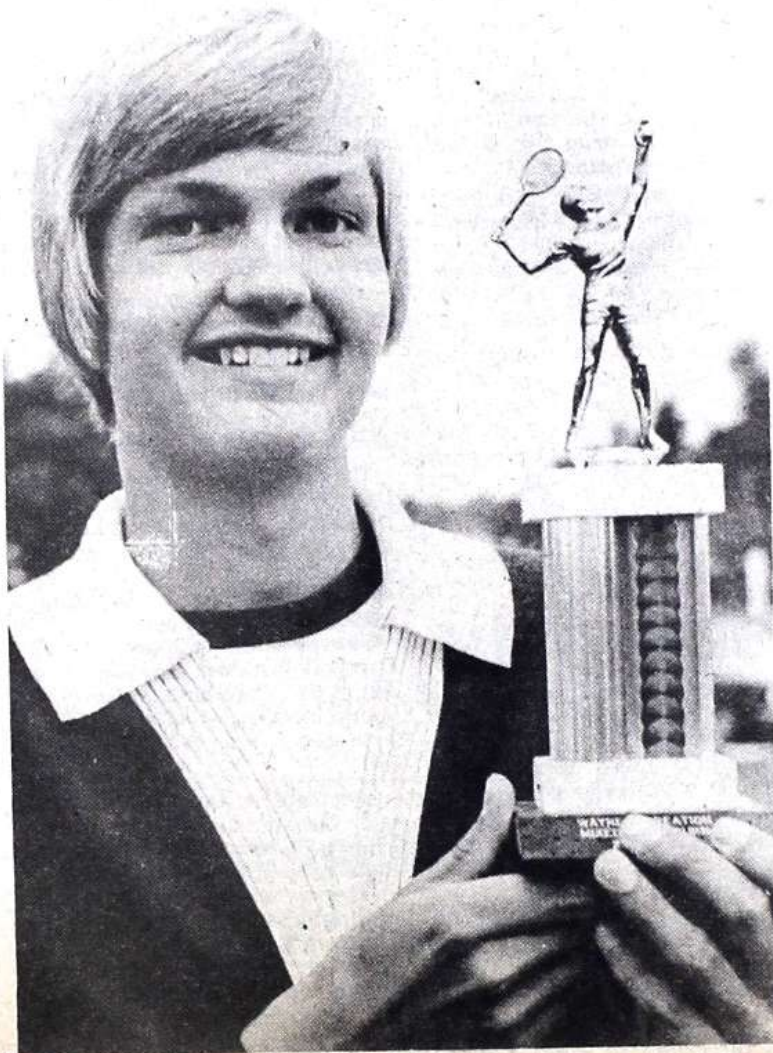

I don't know when Iran intervened and offered the American team an invitation to come to its country. Obviously, it turned out O.K. for those concerned.

Yes, once one programs the old computer and there is no other input, the results can be confusing. (Just like that last sentence). Anyway, I hope someone can fill in what happened to Team Michigan on its way to Iraq.

Move over tennis world

17-year-old Todd Beyer, who will be a senior at Wayne Memorial this fall, has established himself as one of the finer junior tennis players in the state. Beyer and teammate Ted Williams captured the double's title in the prestigious Detroit News' tournament, by beating Dearborn's Dave Turcott and Dave Ververbar in sets of 6-2 and 6-4. Todd also finished runner-up in singles in his age group, losing a well-fought match to David Kordash. Beyer came back to win at the Wayne Invitational, sponsored by the parks and recreation department. Above, Beyer brandishes one of the several trophies he won this summer.

Westland announces ice skating hours

There's skating for everyone at the Westland Multi-Purpose Arena. And, if you're a figure skating enthusiast, the recreation department has also set aside several hours a week for you to learn or improve your skills.

The Open Skating fees for residents and non-residents are 25 cents (ages 12 and under) and 50 cents for adults. The charge for family night is $1.50, and all children must have parents in attendance at the session.

The open skating hours are: Monday, from 1:10 to 2:30 p.m. and from 2:40 to 4 p.m.; Tuesday, from 1:10 to 2:30 p.m. and from 2:40 to 4 p.m.; Wednesday, from 1:10 to 2:30 p.m.; 2:40 to 4 p.m. and 4:10 to 5:40 p.m.

There is no open skating on Thursday.

Friday, there will be skating from 2 to 3:50 p.m. and an additional two hours, 7 to 9 p.m. will be added in November until February; on Saturday: 1:30 to 2:50 p.m. and 3 to 4:20 p.m., beginning on Nov. 19 and 6:30 to 7:50 p.m.

On Sunday, there is an hour of skating between 2:30 to 4:20 p.m. and 6:30 to 8:20 p.m. which is Family Night.

Figure skating lessons will begin on Sept. 26 and for further information please contact the Multi-Purpose Arena at 729-4560.

Westwood to go with volunteer coaching help

Like most school districts Westwood has its financial problems.

And, like many school districts, school officials were about to throw up their hands and call off the fall sports program in the money squeeze.

However, the booster clubs in the district came up with a plan that gave sports "a stay of execution". They'd help raise the money if the coaches didn't mind offering their services on a volunteer basis.

The coaches agreed — and head grid coach Bob Yauck is more than pleased.

For one reason, Robichaud, the only high school in the district, has the makings of a championship football team. In fact, Robichaud may be the Class B team in the area to beat.

"This team has great potential," Yauck said. "We have size and speed and our success will largely depend upon how fast we come along in the next two weeks."

The Bulldogs open up their 9-game season on Sept. 9 when they travel to Oak Park for a nonleague.

Yauck will have in his lineup Alvin Carter, an All-Metro election a year ago, who will return to quarterback the team.

Carter is a bona fide candidate for all-state honors, according to Yauck, "and, we will let him prove it during the course of the season."

Also returning to the squad that won six of its nine games a year ago, are speedster Mark Woodson who turned in a 9.9 for the 100-yard dash as a sophomore. Woodson will be the main thrust of the Bulldog ballcarrying scheme.

Other standouts include Bob Yauck Jr., the coach's son who is a two-way tackle (5-11½, 220 pounds); Darryl Goree, tight end (6-2, 175), Ralph Payne (190-5-9), and Calvin Townsend, a 6-2, 255-pound tackle.

Yauck has fielded seven previous Bulldog models and feels "this could be his best."

A Suburban Athletic Conference championship in Robichaud's future then is a good possibility.

"I figure we will be right up there," Yauck announced. "Last year we lost a couple of heartbreakers and this year we will have a more balanced attack."

also must be considered as a threat. "There's definitely going to be more balance in this league than (Continued on Page 3)

Same old problems at Inkster

Though they never seem to have the numbers or the necessary equipment, Inkster High has managed to always field a respectable football team under Coach Arnie James.

And the same problems — lack of money and equipment and personnel again plague James as he prepares for his fifth season as the Vikings' head skipper.

"We still have problems getting enough support for our football team," James said. "we lack the necessary equipment — we're patching up our teams with whatever we can get our hands on."

Inkster, with its makeshift model, rolled to a 5-2 record a year ago — those two losses were in conference play. But Coach James quickly points out, "that they will be hard-

Coach Stokes: 'We lost 22 lettermen'

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

Coach Pat Stokes has revived football at Belleville High School.

Now, with the loss of 22 lettermen including quarterback Tom Laing, Kevin Barnes and Roy Rutherford to graduation, he and his Tigers will try to survive the 1977 Suburban 8 Conference campaign with only two veterans.

"We were hit hard by graduation," said Stokes who guided the Tigers to a third place finish in the league last season. "So, we have a lot of rebuilding to do."

Despite the lack of seasoned players, Stokes says he is approaching the opener with an optimistic view.

"I haven't seen anything this year that would make me feel otherwise," he said. "I'm always optimistic about our prospects."

There are some good reasons why the third year Tiger coach is figuring to win more than he loses this year. One of those is Kelvin Patterson, the quick-moving runningback who was among the best ballcarriers in the area last year. Patterson also proved a valuable asset on defense as a safety.

The only other regular off of last year's team that posted a 5-4 record is Mike Anguilm who started as an end.

Stokes probably will boost one of the finest looking tackles in the area in junior Joe Kennedy who checks in at 6-5, 240 pounds. Kennedy will be utilized on offense as well as defense and if all pre-season predictions materialize, the sturdy lineman could become one of the best the school has produced.

Stokes will move linebacker Bob Cook, a 5-11, 193-pound senior into the other tackle slot. Cook missed most of the 1976 season with an injury.

Larry Pinkston is being groomed to fill in the quarterback slot left vacant by the elusive Laing.

"We have a lot of looking to do before we will decide who'll fit where," Stokes said. "Right now, we have people battling for positions."

Belleville opens the season at home to Wayne Memorial on Sept. 9. The last two confrontations between these two teams ended in Wayne victories, but both were secured in extra periods.

Stokes sees Edsel Ford as the top contender for the throne won by Dearborn in last year's conference battles, but he also sees "more balance" in the league than in previous years.

"Fortunately none of the conference schools had millage problems as did some leagues," Stokes said.

Champs missing

Tri-River grid campaign 'could be a scramble'

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

With Taylor Kennedy, the defending champ, sidelined because of economic woes, the Tri-River Conference football title chase will be a wide open affair.

That's the word from Cherry Hill Coach Jerry Pawloski who is entering his fourth year with more optimism and manpower than he had in the two previous campaigns. Taylor Kennedy has won the last two versions of the conference titles and when the voters in the school district recently turned down a millage levy the school board countered by eliminating all extra-curricular activities, including varsity sports for the 1977-78 school year.

The school board decision affects Kennedy, Taylor Truman and Taylor Center. The latter two schools are affiliated with the Great Lakes 8 Conference.

"I feel there will be more balance in our league this year," Pawloski commented. "Everyone has lost a number of quality athletes through graduation and because Kennedy is not fielding a team I see a scramble for the league championship."

The Spartans, who have always been thin in numbers, have a nucleus of 30 players returning off of last year's squad which finished with a 1-8 won-lost record. However, most of the griders back this year started as sophomores during the 1976 campaign.

"I feel that this is the best nucleus of players I have had since I started coaching here," remarked Pawloski. "We're going to be an improved club, barring injuries." Injuries are the key to any upward movement for the Spartans, stressed the Cherry Hill mentor.

"When you have 30 or so players, any kind of injury is going to hurt you," Pawloski added.

Cherry Hill launches the season on Sept. 10 when it will test Dearborn Heights Annapolis, the defending Metro-West Conference champ.

The Spartans are grooming Scott Dawson to quarterback the team. Dawson was in the thick of the action last year as a sophomore and his experience could prove to be the difference between another losing season or a winning one.

Dawson will have junior fullback Darryl Gallant and Tom Minor, the last of the Minor boys, as his side. Tom's brothers — Mike and Jim were also former backs at Cherry Hill.

Tom and John Sweet, a center who will double on defense as a linebacker, have been picked to co-captain the Spartans this year.

Other names Spartan fans will be hearing about are veterans Bob Tamm, a 5-8, 205 pound defensive tackle who could develop as one of the best in the league, Rick Searcy, a 5-10, 165-pound griddy who will switch from the offensive backfield to the defensive secondary.

Pawloski has picked up a couple of key players from the junior varsity, a team that posted its first winning season in nearly 13 years. Wayne Nichols, a 5-11, 175-pound athlete will play both the offensive guard and defensive tackle slots, while 6-1, 155-pound George Johnson is a runningback and Ken Taylor is a defensive end.

With the absence of Kennedy from the conference football scene, who does Pawloski see as the heir-apparent?

"You always have to consider Melvindale as a serious contender," Pawloski said, "and, after glancing through the eligibility list I see that Riverside has a lot of its players back."

"However, we're not sure that they will have a team this year."

The Dearborn Heights — based high school also is having millage problems. The coaches have been asked to work on a voluntary basis until the voters make up their minds on a school tax increase which is due on the ballots later next month.

Rocket runners are fueling up for rough '77 campaign'

With only two holdovers from last year's team that captured a share of the Northwest Suburban Conference cross country title, Coach Jerry Szukaitis and his Rockets at John Glenn have their work cut out for them.

"We're going to be hard pressed to repeat this season," said Szukaitis, the dean of area cross country coaches. Szukaitis is entering his 14th season as the Rocket skipper.

"We lost a lot of excellent talent through graduation," Szukaitis continued, "and most of the people will have to fill in the gaps fast."

Ted Unold, Glenn's premier runner a year ago, will attend Michigan State this fall.

Held over from last year's squad are Mark Johnson and Jim Barber who have been designated as co-captains. Seniors Randy Gabrys and Jim Green, along with Steve Stephens, a junior, must come through if Glenn is going to have any kind of season at all.

Szukaitis also has the services of three sophomores who are very promising. They're Jim Kanclerz, a Stevenson Junior High product who won the city title in the mile a year ago; Martin Shelly, who has turned in a 2:07 for the half-mile in junior high, and Tom Andrews, young brother of one of the Rockets' former cross country captains.

Glenn and Garden City East shared the conference title a year ago, but it is East that has been given the pre-season title favorite role. The Panthers have four top notch runners off of last year's squad, according to Szukaitis.

"Also, look for Thurston to be a much improved team that is has been," Szukaitis noted.

Szukaitis and his team travelled to Oscoda last week to warm up for the 1977 campaign which will begin for the Rocket harriers Sept. 10 when they take part in the Early Bird Invitational. Host is Lincoln Park.

Sandwiched between the Lincoln Park Invitational and the Schoolcraft Invitational (Sept. 17) is Glenn's first dual meet of the season, a home encounter with Adrian (Sept. 12).

At Livonia Churchill

CC monopoly is in jeopardy

For seven years the Western Six Conference has known but one cross country champ — Livonia Churchill.

But that could change, according to Churchill Coach Dave Westover whose Chargers were hit hard by graduation.

"We lost three excellent runners — Vic Wietecha, Sean Palmer and Paul LaChance — to graduation and, though we have never lost in the league, those this isn't the year," Westover said.

Churchill will place a 31 conference dual meet winning streak on the block when it meets Walled Lake Western in their league opener next month.

"Western and Northville, maybe in reverse order I'm not sure, are our main threats," Westover revealed. "It's not going to take us very long to find out where we stand."

"We have a 31 meet winning streak in the league and we would like to keep it going," Westover added.

Don't begin to shed tears for Westover and the Chargers. They have two of the finest harriers bolstering their 1977 ambitions. Tobin Jones earned all-state consideration a year ago and Dennis Flamme has been a member of the Chargers past three championship teams.

Jones and Flamme will be joined by a pair of juniors Kevin Paul and Ken Gaskell, who are described as "runners with a lot of potential" and senior hopeful Steve Yearks.

Franklin could be a threat

Traditional Northwest Suburban Conference cross country power Livonia Franklin will stay true to tradition — the Patriots will figure in the chase for the title.

But a lot will depend on how quickly Coach Bob Holmes can whip a few of his harriers into tip-top shape.

"We're going to be a fairly solid team," announced Holmes as he prepares for his 10th campaign as head coach. "We could be a threat if the pieces fall together."

"But, I don't think we're the team to beat," he added.

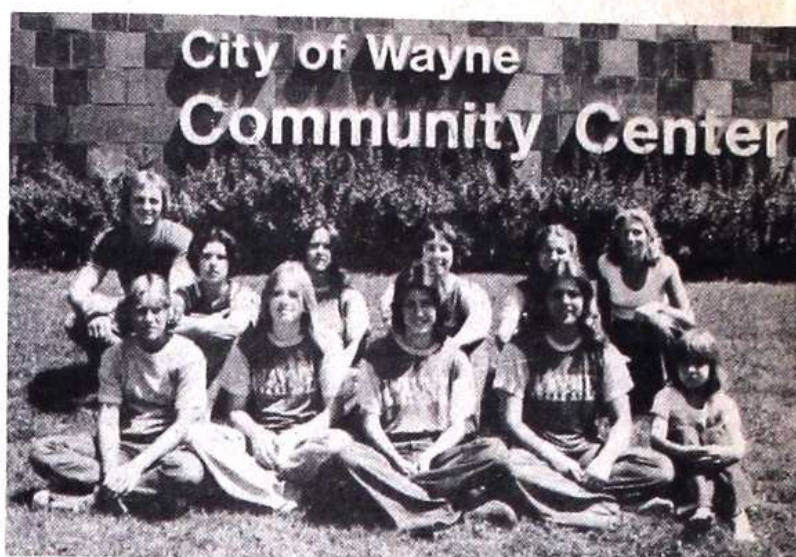

That dubious honor belongs to defending co-champ, Garden City East which has four holdovers from last year's squad. Holmes also agrees with his counterpart at John Glenn, Jerry Szukaitis, that Thurston will be a team to contend with this season. Glenn owns the other half of the title.

"Thurston has two good runners coming back and if they can get a couple of more kids to go along with them, there are going to be tough," Holmes said.

Maxi-League champs

'Michigan Mile' highlights DRC holiday weekend

With a special Sunday afternoon card of 11 races sandwiched between Saturday's $100,000-added Michigan Mile and Monday's $50,000-added Frontier Handicap, Detroit Race Course is prepared for a Labor Day weekend which could be the most colorful period in its 28-year history.

Actually the holiday celebration will start on Friday (Sept. 2) with the annual Old Times Day presentation. Again thousands of extra hotdogs and hundreds of extra gallons of soda pop are on hand for this gastronomic occasion, not to mention ice cream, peanuts and popcorn.

None of those items — in a reflection of how it was in the "good old days" — will require more than a 10-cent outlay, and again grandstand admission will be reduced to 50 cents. In one last big picnic before school starts, children under 12 will be admitted.

For the dyed-in-the-wool racing fan, however, the fun will begin the next afternoon. That's the Saturday afternoon of Michigan's richest horse race, the Michigan Mile. Outstanding thoroughbreds from all parts of the country and Canada will again compete over the mile and one eighth distance and two or three Michigan-owned stars will add local flavor to the race.

Private Thoughts, owned by Sandra Farms of Metamora and recent winner of the $150,000 Arlington Classic in Chicago, is expected to start. So in Methioxya, owned by Shinnone Farms of Bloomfield Hills and the surprise runner-up in the miles last year. Still another is Jamming, owned by Detroit fried chicken king Karil Vengelloff and the winner of the $28,000 Mile Trial at DRC on Aug. 20.

Also nominated for the DRC classic have been such national stars as Forego, ridden by Willie Shoemaker; Nearly On Time, handled by young jockey sensation Steve Cauthen; Norcliffe, the 1976 Canadian champion, and My Juliet, voted the champion of all U.S. sprinters last year.

There will also be 11 races at DRC that Saturday, with post time being moved up to 2:15 p.m. to accommodate the extra event. The same early start will prevail on Sunday and Monday with an extra race added.

Sunday's feature will be the $20,000-added Old Hat Handicap for fillies and mares, and in this one, too, female equines will be on hand from all parts of the country.

The Frontier Handicap of Labor Day will be strictly for Michigan-breds and it will be a fitting climax for one of the "horsesiest weekends" in the annals of Michigan racing. Once again the best thoroughbreds produced by the Wolverine state will go at it over a distance of a mile and one sixteenth.

DRC's veteran vice president and general manager Dick Wilson, who conceived the four day racing extravaganza, has a word for it:

"We think this weekend will not only be a joy to the regular racing fan," Wilson said, "but a time when potential new racing fans will be attracted by the programs to DRC. It's a perfect opportunity to put lots of our eggs in one basket and see what hatches."

Half-point separates golf leaders

Though they swept all five points from their opponents, Bruce Watt and Bruce Karen know they can't rest on their laurels in the Canton Men's Golf League.

Watt and Karen have a slim half-point edge over league runner-up Lynn Tetsworth and Paul Oberhelman who continue to breathe down the pacesetters' necks.

Watt and Karen had little trouble with their rivals last week, whipping John Wilson and Larry Slade 5-0, but Tetsworth and Oberhelman also carded a 5-0 victory over Ron Hoffman and Gary Rehberg to keep pace.

Third place Ron Cundiff and Hulack stayed in the title race by whitewashing Vic Legg and Art Spinella.

Dominique Patalidis and substitute Doug Johnson shot the best rounds of the week as they turned in identical 38s, while Gordon LaPierre posted a 39 for the second best round.

Here are last week's scores: Oberhelman-Tetsworth 5, Hoffman-Rehberg 0; Valenti-Kraft 3, Mattingly-Carrigan 2; Karen-Watt 5, Slade and Wilson 0, Horrey-Wallace 3½, Canning-Young 1½, LaPierre-Agonis 3½, Gerth-Stuebben 1½, Cundiff-Wolford 5, Legg-Spinella 0; Zelek-Mooney 5, Koers-Koers 0; Ryan-White 4½, Patalidis-Seewald ½; Eminger-Sheets 5, Blumenshine-Grahn 0; Muelling-Matson 3, Mogelnicki-Riggs 2.

Wolverines lose thriller, 2-1

Wolverine's chances of making it to the Class E Inter-City Tournament state finals last week.

Ahead 1-0 at the end of six innings, Wayne saw their chances of qualifying for the state title vanish when Roseville rallied for the two decisive runs in the final innings.

Roseville scored the decisive runs off of reliever Jeff Lambert who worked the final 4 and one-thirds innings, gave up four hits while he struck out seven and walked five.

Zarb for the fullback jobs while the runningback posts will go to either Ed Turbeville, Mike Wilson, Vernon Hill, a transfer student from Romulus High, or Mike Lazar.

The No. 1 candidate for the center post is Dave Lusk who will double as a linebacker on defense.

The Wayne offensive lineup could feature Randy Shirk and Jim Hester at guards, tackles Mike Ostrander (6-4, 220), and Jeff Bayer (6-2, 190) and ends Mark Zerna and Larry Vojtkofsky.

Some of the names that appeared in last week's edition of The Associated Newspapers carrying the headline, "Inkster rally beats Yanks, 8-3," were garbled.

Traditionally a strong defense-minded squad, Wayne has to sew up a team hit hard by graduation.

Ostrander, a two-way performer as a tackle, and Chris Leverenz, a lineman, along with Lusk form the nucleus that may perpetuate Wayne's defensive tradition.

"We're going to be a great hitting and pursuing football team," Carter said, "and I feel we're going to be all right. A lot depends upon our soon our juniors come along."

Wayne will scrimmage Dearborn Divine Child, a perennial Class B power, Garden City East and Bloomfield Hills Lahser Friday night beginning at 7:30 p.m.

There is no admission charge.

Salute to prep gridders

The Associated Newspapers' will greet the 1977 high school football season with a special salute to area teams.

The previews, written by veteran sports editor Tom Mooradian, will include features on all area prep teams, schedules and photos by Lothar Koneitzko, ranked among the best in his profession.

So don't miss this "Salute to 1977 Football" which will be going to press the second week of September.

Vikings are thin in numbers

"Everybody is up from a year ago," James announced. "Ecorse, Highland Park, and Robichaud will have a lot of holdover talent and that leaves us and River Rouge to fight it out for the cellar spot.

"We don't have the numbers and need a miracle to stay above waters," he added.

James will have what he calls a very knowledgeable quarterback in Stacy Bostick who earned a niche of recognition in the slot a year ago as a ninth grader.

"Stacy is not heavy, but he is quick and he has a lot of football know-how," James revealed, "and we're going to call upon him a lot this year."

Tony Smith also is eyeing the quarterback slot. The first year senior griddier can throw on the same level with his younger counterpart but he hasn't seen as much action.

The Viking offensive backfield also will include David Peace, Brian Thomas and Anthony Newman — or a combination of the three — and the line will feature veterans Dennis Frye and Murphy Crawford.

James speaks highly of senior letterman Blair Spikes, considered his fastest offensive guard. There are other potentially solid players in Rufus Walker, 6-0, 175-pound split end; Lydell Knight, a 6-2, 160-pound flanker-safety and Maurice Henrick, a 5-9, 165-pound cornerback.

A couple of other positive notes are that coach James will have two former grid stars, Alonzo Glaze and William Morgan to help him field the Vikings. He has always been shy of help.

Inkster will start the 1977 campaign a week later than most area teams. The Vikings take on Buena Vista for their first test on Sept. 16 in Saginaw.

Then, on Sept. 23, Inkster launches into the thick of the Suburban Athletic Conference title battles against arch-rival, Robichaud, considered a serious threat to Rouge's grid throne.

Righetti: 'We're going to be tough'

A new cross country reign began in Wayne as Ernie Righetti was named as head coach of the Zebras, replacing veteran Doug Garrett.

Righetti, a former track and football star at the high school, has been head track coach for the past three years but it will be his inaugural year as the top cross country mentor.

Wayne Memorial has been a perennial threat in the Great Lakes 8 Conference and a consistent state title contender for nearly 15 years. They compiled a 11-1 mark a year ago.

And Righetti feels the 1977 model also will be well-represented.

"We're going to be tough," Righetti said. "If we stay healthy we'll have a super year, in fact, I'll go out on a limb and say we could have the best year that Wayne has ever had in the sport."

Righetti's optimism stems from a score of returning lettermen including Rick Blaha who finished eighth in the two-mile last May at the state finals. Blaha is one of the finest long-distance runners in the area and is definitely among the top title contenders in the state this season.

Also side of Blaha will be seniors Ron Mason, Tim Quaintance and junior Paul Spencer, veterans of last year's championship campaign. Moving up with the seniors is an unexperienced newcomer, Doug Tolson, whom Righetti labelled as a "super sophomore."

"Doug has taken part in our summer clinic program and has run with us all year long," Righetti related. "I feel he's one of the 'super sophomores' in this area."

With the Taylor School District dropping varsity athletics for the 1977-78 year because of financial problems, Wayne has had to pick up a couple of rivals to fill in the vacuum. Righetti pointed out that they have scheduled Dearborn to fill one of the holes.

"Dearborn has a tradition of fielding excellent cross country teams and we're looking forward to meeting them," Righetti said. "In fact, the cross country schedule is a lot tougher than it has been in previous year."

Will there be a problem of transition from the old guard to the new? "I don't think so," Righetti said.

"These kids were my first ones. They ran with our track program when I was first appointed as head track coach."

"And I really don't see any problem."

All in the family

there ever has," Yauck pointed out, "and we're going to be in the midst of any title skirmish."

Other prominent Bulldogs to watch this year are: Fullback Roger McGhee (senior, 190-pounds), Allan Moore, (210-senior tackle), and Mike Morgan, (senior 155-pound slot-back).

Attention, YBA bowlers

It's time for the junior bowlers in the Youth Bowling Association to get ready for league competition.

The YBA will begin action at the Lodge Lanes on Saturday, Sept. 10 starting at 9:30 a.m. At 12:30, the Karen Roberts and at 3 p.m. the Teens leagues will start rolling.

"We just want to remind our bowlers that league competition will begin on Sept. 10," stressed Violet Cook, a coach for one of the teams.

Lodge Lanes is located in Belleville at the I-94 Service Drive.

Benefit golf tourney to honor Msgr. Kern

The third annual benefit golf tournament in honor of Msgr. Clement Kern of Most Holy Trinity Church, Detroit, will be held on Friday, September 9, at the Redford Golf Course on Berg Road between 7 Mile and Grand River.

All proceeds will go to Father Kern's inner city parish the Most Holy Trinity Church for scholarships to needy students. Donation is $40 (tax deductible) per person for a complete day including golf, lunch, buffet dinner, refreshments, trophies, and door prizes.

Ten-year-old Randy Alderman became the first official entrant in this year's 17th annual Punt, Pass & Kick competition, got former Detroit Lion star Mel Farr's autograph and caught a sneak preview of Ford's new Fairmont — all in one afternoon. Registration for PP&K, co-sponsored by the National Football League and the Ford Dealers of America, is open to youngsters aged eight through 13 at participating Ford dealerships until September 30. Farr is a Ford dealer in Southfield. More than 1,000,000 youngsters are expected to take part in this year's competition.

Punt, Pass and Kick registration begins

Punt, Pass and Kick (PP&K) celebrates its 17th anniversary this year with more than one million boys and girls between the ages of eight and 13 expected to compete. PP&K registration opens last week and continues through September 30 and participating Ford dealerships across the country.

Sponsored by the Ford Dealers of America and the National Football League, PP&K has drawn over 14 million youngsters into competition since its inception in 1961. National winners have their names inscribed on the PP&K plaque at the Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio.

Bert Jones, the Baltimore Colts star quarterback, is a former PP&K winner while Mike Kirkland, his backup, was the national 13-year-old champion in 1967. Other PP&K participants include Colts punter, David Lee; Randy Grossman, tight end of the Pittsburgh Steelers, and

MHSCA to install 18 coaches at Hall of Fame ceremonies

The Michigan High School Coaches' Association will officially install 18 men in its Hall of Fame Saturday evening Sept. 10.

The installation dinner will be on the CMU campus in the University Center ballroom following the Center-Eastern Michigan football game that afternoon at Perry Sports Stadium. The Hall of Fame room is adjacent to the ballroom.

Each March the MHSCA installs its most recent selections along with any honorary members it has chosen.

The MHSCA was founded on the CMU campus 22 years ago; and its unique Hall of Fame — the only one of its kind in the country — was created through the generosity and dedicated efforts of the group's executive director Paul Smarks.

To be chosen for the Hall of Fame, a coach or official must be a member of the MHSCA and have been active in Michigan interscholastic sports for at least 25 years.

Those who will be installed this September include 1975 inductees Harold Kaczynski of Davison (Frankenmuth HS), Jack Castignola from Trenton, Howard Kraft of Detroit (Redford Union), Walt Bazylewicz from Berkley (Detroit Catholic League) and Herc Renda of Pontiac (Northern HS); 1976 inductees Bill Kelly of Mount Pleasant (Cass City and Saginaw Arthur Hill HS's), Jack Cotton from Farmington, Cosmo Plotts of Warren, Fred Lee from East Detroit and Bob Campbell of Lansing (Sexton).

1977 inductees Dave Dillon from Sturgis, Jack Hepinstall of Hillsdale, Jack Rice from Grosse Pointe Woods (Detroit Denby), Iggy Konrad of Lansing (Sexton) and Ellsworth Anderson from Albion; plus honorary members Don Canham of the University of Michigan, the late Charles Forsythe of the Michigan High School Athletic Association and former President Gerald R. Ford of Grand Rapids (South HS) and the U. of M.

Tickets for the dinner are $10 and may be ordered from Connie Behm, Development Office, Central Michigan University, Mount Pleasant, Mich., 48859. The dinner will be at 5:30 p.m. Game tickets are an additional $3 per reserved seat, and game time is 1:30 p.m.

Former Eastern Michigan University swimming team captain and All-American Gordon Messer will coach Schoolcraft swimming this season. Coach Messer holds a bachelor's degree in business education from Eastern. He has been a pool manager, physical education and swimming coach at Taylor Center High School since 1972.

Dan VanHusen, a former wrestling and assistant coach at Grand Valley State College, will coach wrestling this year. Coach VanHusen has a bachelor's degree in urban and environmental studies in physical education from Grand Valley. He has been a wrestling coach at Northview Public School near Grand Rapids.

Schoolcraft students who are interested and want to participate in these or any of the other variety sports offered at Schoolcraft should contact the physical education office at 591-6400, extension 403. Schoolcraft College is located at 18600 Haggerty Road in Livonia.

Five new coaches have joined the Schoolcraft College athletic staff for the 1977-78 season.

The appointments, announced by Athletic Director Marvin Gans, are for women's volleyball, cross country, women's basketball, swimming and wrestling.

Tom Teeters will coach the women's volleyball team during their season which begins September 22. He has coached volleyball at Clarenceville High School since 1973 and has been an assistant coach at Schoolcraft under Mike O'Toole for the past two seasons.

Dan Reynolds has been named cross country coach. A 1968 graduate of Livonia Stevenson High School, the former Schoolcraft and Eastern Michigan University runner holds a bachelor's degree in physical education from Eastern. Coach Reynolds has been active in track and field competition in this area for the past twelve years. The cross country schedule begins September 10.

The women's basketball team will be coached by Jeanette Bowman. A counselor at Lincoln Park High School, Coach Bowman holds a bachelor's degree in physical education from

Roseville erases Wayne

Rams ousted in quarter-finals

Wayne's dreams for a Class E state baseball title ended in a nightmare last week as Roseville crushed the Rams 15-6 in the quarter-finals.

The Rams were out of it after three innings when the Roseville entry compiled a decisive 8-0 lead. The winners led 11-0 before Wayne got on the scoreboard with four runs in the bottom of the fourth.

Chuck Erickson started for the losers and worked six innings, gave up 10 runs on 11 hits. He was charged with the loss. Denny Perusse finished up and he also had his problems.

Wayne tallied four times in the fourth on walks to Bob Nutt and Rickie Peters and a single by Phil Lambert which loaded the bases for John Grace who then delivered a two-run single.

Erickson walked to load the bases again and Perusse was safe on an error, allowing the third run to score. Bob Kost walked, forcing in the fourth run.

Wayne added its final two runs of the ball game in the bottom of the seventh as Peters, Lambert and Erickson all drew bases on balls, then Jerry Stevens grounded out, driving in one run.

Perusse slashed a single to right, scoring what proved to be the final run of the ball game.

The loss brought the curtains down on a 13-6 Rams' season.

Wolverines

relieve starter Tracy Conyer who pitched the first two innings and held Roseville scoreless and hitless.

The Wolverines, coming on strong at the end of the season, brought the curtains down to a 12-7 won-lost season. They got on the board in the top of the sixth as Lambert singled, stole second and scored on a two-out double by Joe Jones.

Held to one hit over the span of the first six innings, Roseville bunched together two singles and a walk in the seventh to jar the Wolverines from the playoffs.

In the quarter-finals, Wayne crushed Inkster 16-3 as Tracy Conyer tossed a three-hitter, fanned nine and walked five. Wayne exploded for 11 runs in the fourth to seal the victory after tallying four times in the first.

Lambert slashed a homer and double and drove in three runs while teammate Jeff Auer laced three singles. Ken Browe picked up three walks to go along with his single and double and Conyer got aboard five times thanks to four walks and a single.

In the first round of action, Wayne eliminated a stubborn Dearborn, the host, 8-7.

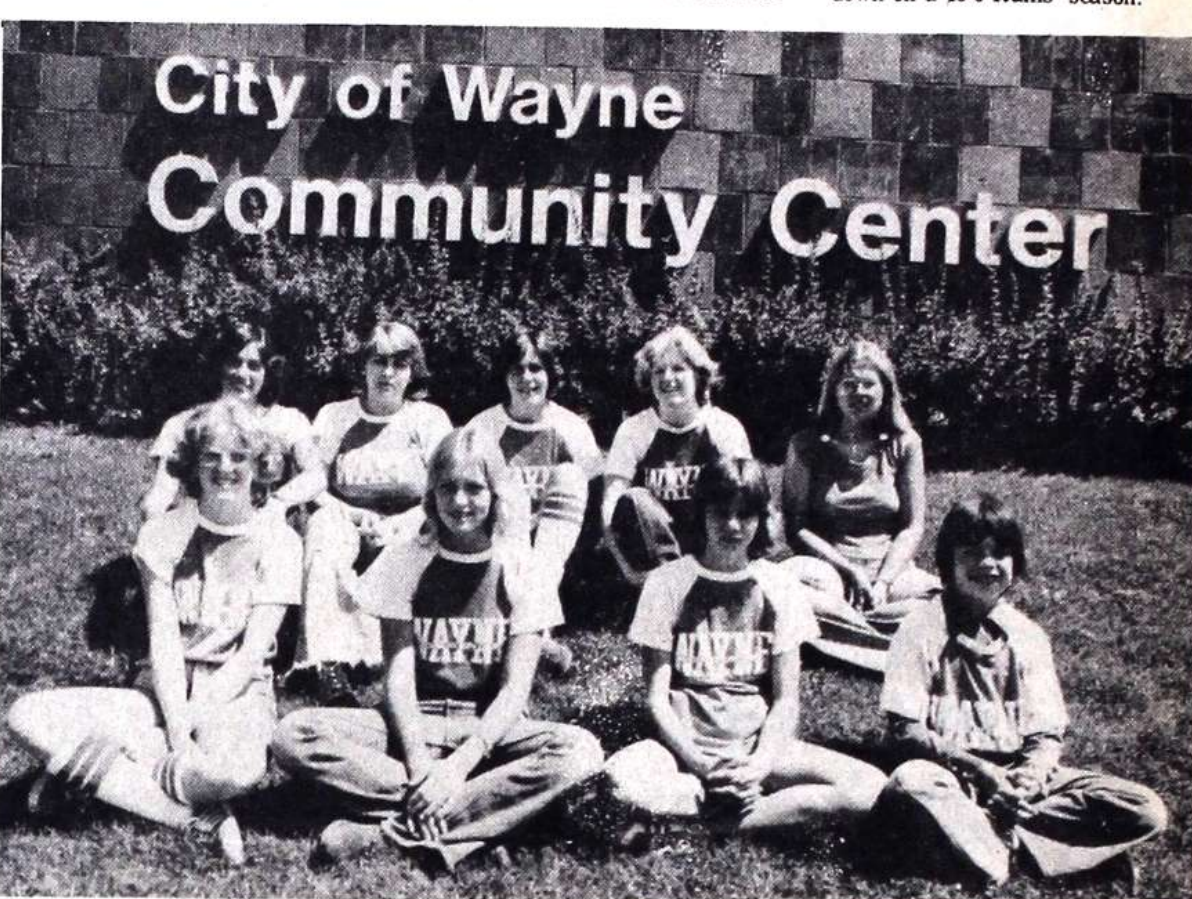

Wayne fell behind 6-3 in the third after scoring three times in the first inning. Erupting for four runs in the fourth after a single run in the third enabled the Wolverines to shake the stubborn Dearbornites.

Conyer received credit for the victory as he went four innings, gave up six runs on five hits. He also whiffed four and walked five. Lambert helped out by pitching three innings and allowing one run on two hits.

The Wolverines survived a six-run third as they gave up only one run after that frame. In their opening inning, Wayne scored on an error, an RBI double by Browe and Conyer's run-scoring single.

A single by Browe, a walk to Conyer, a wild pitch and Joe Jones' ground out paved the way for Wayne's third inning run, while Robert Novack started the Wolverines on their path to victory when he doubled to lead off the fourth.

Bob Black then came through with a run-scoring single, and Auer also singled. Three errors and two wild pitches later and Wayne put what proved to be the winning runs on the board.

They're off to Wyandotte

Burghuff captures inaugural Len Anderson softball title

BY TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

Burghuff added another gem to its softball crown.

The recently-crowned Wayne Class B king destroyed a field of 16 to capture the inaugural Lenny Anderson Memorial Tournament title.

The tournament was played to raise monies to build a softball diamond in Anderson's memory. Patrolman Anderson was the first police officer to be slain in the line of duty in Wayne.

"We're really proud of winning this title," said Burghuff's Dave Conlin. "Our team wanted to be the first to take the title."

Burghuff didn't have much trouble. They crushed VFW in the finals 16-8 to claim the championship. Burghuff launched its title bid with an easy 19-2 victory over Wayne Motors of Westland.

The champs then took on Joe Thomas of Westland and came away with a 10-5 triumph to advance to the quarterfinals where they clashed with the undefeated Canton champ, McMurray. McMurray's was a 15-8 victim.

The Wayne contingent advanced to the semi-finals where Perry Meade of Farmington stood in its

Dean Minton, Burghuff's slugger, was awarded the Most Valuable Player accolade after latching on to 20 hits in 23 appearances at the plate.

In the finals, Minton collected a perfect four-for-four, including a homer, pair of doubles and a single. He accounted for five runs batted in. Norm Beasley collected three hits — one a roundtripper, and a single and double. Denny Rogowski, Mike Plagens, Ron Hayes, Bob Jaskolski, Dave Conlin and Joe LaFramboise all checked in with two hits.

A windshield wiper which errs in position or timing is usually set in incorrectly on its drive shaft. With one hand, lift the wiper arm as far away from the windshield as possible. Using a screwdriver, with the other hand, gently pry the wiper arm from its shaft. Reposition it so that it does not collide with the other wiper and push it back onto the shaft. If necessary, reposition both arms on their shafts so that they do not collide with each other.

Surf casting in Michigan

By SAM GRISSOM
Outdoor Writer

Almost any evening you'll see them. Determined looking men in chest waders, carrying long rods in one hand and a lantern in the other. With a knowing smile on their faces they trudge through the sand toward the waters edge.

They're part of the growing number of people who are finding the shoreline of lakes Michigan and Huron, at dusk, the site of one of the most rewarding types of fishing imaginable.

Large steelhead, browns, an occasional laker, and in the fall, salmon are in the shallow water gorging themselves on the small bait fish that abound there.

Almost any river or small stream will attract these fish so it's not hard to find a place to fish. The ranks of surf casters are still small so there is usually plenty of room; and on some nights you'll be all by yourself.

Some of the better spots on the Lake Michigan side are the Otter, Brewe, and Acme Creeks, and the Boardman, Platte and Sable Rivers. The Lake Huron side hosts a considerable number of fish in Harrisville, Oscoda, Tawas, Au Gres, and at the Whitney Drain.

The surf casters seem to be about evenly divided into two groups; the lure throwers and the bait washers. With the lure throwers any lure that will cast well produces fish. Little Cleos, Kastmasters, and Rapalas are very effective.

When you cast your lure out, begin your retrieve, and suddenly have your line come to a jerking halt as 15 pounds of steelhead goes screaming out, your pulse will jump 20 percent.

The method I prefer and have found the most productive for me is "bait washing".

I use a super sensitive 12 foot and a Mitchell 300 with 300 yards of 8 pound test line. A small egg sinker, a barrel swivel, a No. 14 hook, and a 4-foot leader of 2 to 4 pound test completes the rig.

With the addition of my waders, fishing vest, battery powered head lamp, spawn bags and a bag of small marshmallows I'm ready to go fishing.

I force the marshmallow on the hook until it just clears the shank. Next I hang on a 4-6 egg spawn bag. The small marshmallow seems to act as an attractor and it also keeps my spawn bag floating off the bottom.

Casting into the stream's influence in the lake, I slowly creep the bait back in. With the small No. 14 hook it's not necessary to set the hook.

At the slightest hesitation I merely lift the rod tip and hang on. With the 2-4 pound test leader there is no way that you can "horse" a fish in.

I set my drag as light as possible and use my index finger for a brake.

I steelhead my run out 75 yards before turning; but out in the surf there are few snags. As long as you don't get excited and apply too much pressure you're in good shape.

One fish can make it worthwhile, and the first time one takes 300 yards of line and keeps going you're hooked. So try it.

Or better yet take your son with you. I know of no better place for a boy to be than fishing with his father in Michigan's surf.

Wayne's figure skating registration gets underway

Registration for the first session of the Wayne Parks and Recreation Figure Skating Program will take place on Wednesday, September 7, for residents, and on Thursday, September 8, for non-residents, between the hours of 5 and 8 p.m.

A late registration, open to everyone, will also be held on Friday, September 9, between 5 and 8 p.m.

Classes will begin the week of September 11. Registrations will be only be accepted during scheduled registration times, and will be held at the Community Center on Howe Road.

Classes will be offered for all levels of skaters, from beginner through advanced. Adult classes are offered on Tuesday morning and afternoon and on Wednesday evenings. A babysitting service is available during the Tuesday daytime classes.

Classes for children will be held on Saturday mornings. Tiny tots classes — ages 3 through 6 — are held on Tuesday and Saturday mornings.

Special classes covering free style, dance, and figures will also be held on Thursday and Friday afternoons. In addition, patch practice ice and dance practice ice will be available again this year, payable in advance.

A new feature of this year's program will be a skating ballet class. This will be an off-ice class covering body conditioning, muscle control, artistic interpretation, and ballet and will be held on Saturday mornings.

For further information, please call the Wayne Community Center at 721-7400.

The Wayne Figure Skating Booster's Club also will start off its 1977-78 skating season activities by holding a used skate and skating dress sale on Wednesday and Thursday, September 7 and 8, between the hours of 5 and 8 p.m. at the Community Center.

People wishing to sell any item should bring them to the community

The Wayne Figure Skating Booster's Club had a successful first year during the 1976-77 season. They sponsored the December Wayne I.S.I.A. Figure Skating Competition at the ice arena; sponsored the Winter Festival Skating Party; sponsored a bus trip to the Ice Capades; purchased a tape recorder for use in the figure skating program; and provided all of the funds used in the rental of the lighting for the 1977 ice show.

The club is hoping for even bigger and better things in the new season and is urging all skaters to support their activities.

Canton golf leaders feeling the pressure

Ask Kay Nichols and Ginny Johnson whose 13½ points give them a one-point edge over the runners-up.

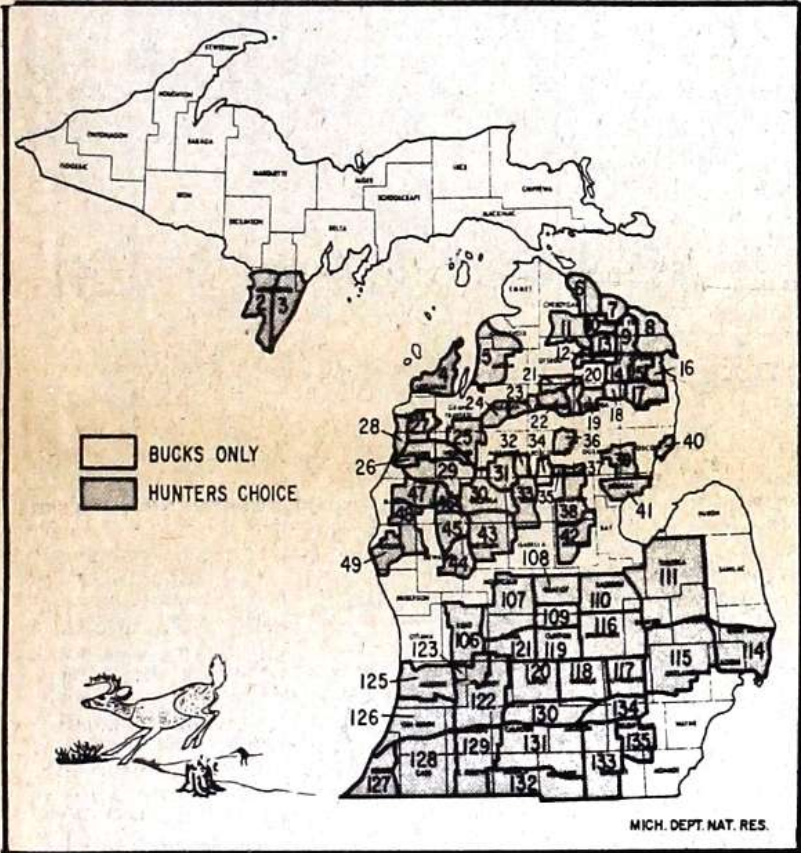

But the league-leaders aren't comfortable in their "first place status", not after giving up two of three points to sixth place Mary Moore and Nina Messano who, with 10 points, are 3½ points behind the point setters.

Mary Kay Frey and Sandy Froozan who have been at the top continue to put pressure on the leaders. They grabbed two points from Bev Green and Olga Fitzpatrick to solidify their second place holdings.

In other action, Helen McGee turned in a 65, her second best round of the year which staked her team to two points from Silvia Dickenson and Titi Himmelberger. The other half of that winning combination included Pauline Pryor.

Kay Nichols posted the best score of the week when she shot a 49. Mary Kay Frey and Mary Moore had the next best as they carded 53 and 54, respectively.

Here are last week's results: Moore and Messano 2, Nichols and Johnson 1; Froozan and Frey 2, Green and Fitzpatrick 1; Skotzke and Gomez 3, Matson and McNutt 0; Karnish and Heidt 2½, Williams and Vesnaugh ½; and McGee and Pryor 2, Himmelberger and Dickenson 1.

Deer hunting format

Michigan's 1977 deer season is expected to be another good one, according to the Department of Natural Resources. Firearm hunters who plan to get in on the November 15-30 action should note the map above, especially if they're interested in the Hunter's Choice option. Remember — all Hunter's Choice applications must be postmarked by Sept. 30 this year. The DNR will issue 128,385 Hunter's Choice permits statewide, plus an additional 19,710 limited Landowner's Permits for farmers. Check your 1977 hunting guides, available from the license dealers for details.

Calling junior golfers

A golf tournament designed for junior linksmen will be staged Friday beginning at 9 a.m. at the Carleton Glen Golf Club.

All junior golfers are invited to compete. The tournament is an ideal warm up for the 1977 high school season which gets off the ground the second week of September.

Competition will be held in five divisions: 12th grade; 11th grade, 10th grade, 9th grade and 7-8th grade.

There will be trophies and medals for the top finishers in each division.

Entry fee is $5 which includes green fees and lunch. Registration will be accepted at the golf course by telephoning 654-6201. Garleton Glen is located on 13470 Grafton Rd. in Carleton.

PP&K contest date set

Danny White, the Dallas Cowboys punter and reserve quarterback.

"The popularity of PP&K is a tribute to America's young people," William P. Benton, a Ford Motor Company vice president and Ford Division general manager, said. "They have accepted the program with tremendous enthusiasm, enabling participation to grow to record levels. We expect registrations to top the one-million mark for the 10th consecutive year."

To register, youngsters aged eight through 13 should visit their local Ford dealer with a parent or guardian. A PP&K tips book will be given each entrant. There is no fee and contestants compete only against others their own age.

No body contact or special equipment is required, and scoring is based on distance and accuracy. One point is awarded for every foot the ball is punted, passed and kicked, and one point is deducted for every foot the ball lands off a center line. Trophies are presented to the winners at each of six levels of competition — local, zone district, area, divisional and national.

Ford dealerships will announce dates and locations for local competition scheduled to begin the weekend of September 30 or October 7.

Local first-place winners move on to zone competitions and winners there qualify for district finals. Area and divisional competitions will take place at National Football League games.

Divisional final to represent the National Football Conference will take place December 18 at Tampa during the Tampa-St. Louis game. American Football Conference winners also will be determined December 18 during the Houston-Cincinnati game in Houston.

The 12 divisional champions, six from the NFC and six from the AFC, will compete for the national championship, during halftime at Super Bowl XII in New Orleans next January 15.

Get ahead now. Stay ahead for a lifetime.

You'll enjoy a good starting salary in the Army, with most of it clear, since the Army takes care of the majority of your living expenses. But if you're like a lot of young people we've talked to, "money isn't everything." You want to know you're equipped to handle whatever comes your way. And that's what the Army can do for you. It provides job training and experience in a skill you can use throughout your life. And in addition, the Army can help you develop a great sense of confidence and responsibility. You really get to know yourself, and your abilities, in the Army. And that is an education all by itself.
